

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

by STIRLING MORITA and JOHN MAES

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest Suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest Suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs: Hoffman Estates — 1-14 bold—

About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 426 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads — most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents — downtown, the Rand-Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 852 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Sigwalt-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

$125,000 in taxes to winner Parks to fight for annexation

by TOM VON MALDER

A potential battle looms between the Wheeling and River Trails park districts over the annexation of an unincorporated area in Wheeling Township that lies between the two districts.

River Trails Park District officials have estimated the area, which contains mostly apartments and one shopping center, could bring in an added $125,000 tax receipts to its district. The area lies south of Palatine Road, east of Wolf Road, north of Willow Road/Seminole Lane and west of Milwaukee Avenue and River Road.

The Wheeling Park Board Thursday night unanimously voted to proceed with annexation of the area, instructing the park staff to meet with the district's attorney to set up a timetable and format for a referendum.

As the district is initiating the annexation attempt, a coincidental referendum would have to be held among residents already in the district to obtain their approval of the annexation.

JUST HOURS AFTER the Wheeling Park District vote, the River Trails Park Board gave its staff the go ahead to prepare the procedures for annexation of the same area. The River Trails commissioners have been discussing the annexation of the area for several months.

"They're interested in the money (tax receipts) and we are interested in the money it will come down to," said Marvin Weiss, director of the River Trails Park District, when he learned of the Wheeling Park Board's action. He added that Wheeling Park Director David Phillips contacted him after a newspaper article appeared on the River Trails District's possible annexation of the area and both directors went out and looked at the area.

Bjorvik may be in middle of park rift

Roger Bjorvik

Atty. Roger A. Bjorvik could become a man in the middle if a fight does break out between the River Trails and Wheeling park districts over annexation of property north of Seminole-Willow Lane in Wheeling Township.

Both park boards have begun action to annex the area which contains some 5,000 apartment dwellers and a new shopping center. Bjorvik is the attorney for both park districts.

"I have to sit down and talk with them," Bjorvik said Friday of the brewing complication in his position. He would not comment on what he feels might happen but said if a fight did develop and the park districts found themselves on opposite sides in court, he was "sure" something would be done so he would not represent both districts in the court battle.

"It's the final completion of the shopping center that has brought all this to a head," said River Trails Comr. George R. Meier. The shopping center is the Willow-Park Shopping Plaza at the southwest corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Palatine Road.

Weiss, agreeing with Meier, said, "I kind of look on the area as the salvation to the potential financing crisis we are facing." The district is faced with smaller tax receipts because of a lowering of the district's land-values for tax purposes.

RESIDENTS OF THE area stand to gain a new park no matter which of the two park districts are successful in annexing the area.

Phillips said his board discussed a possible 5-to 10-acre community park for the area. The River Trails Board said it would study the area to determine what size park might be needed and what facilities should be included at the park.

Some members of the River Trails Park Board said they felt a joint referendum would be best.

Mediator hopeful postal strike can be averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W. J. Usery of the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service early Sunday evening said some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said, "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer.

Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

"SOME MAJOR decisions have to be made, if they can be made," Usery said. "I'm still hopeful."

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

Rademacher said, "There's a complete understanding that nobody's going to go out tomorrow. Whatever job action we take has got to be national, well-organized."

"We would want to be fair to the public because we would not want to be striking against the public," Rademacher said. He disclosed the union's first wage position called for an increase of about 24 per cent during a two-year period, which he said would mean comparability with the employees of the private United Parcel Service. He said USP workers make $1.36 an hour more than postal worker on the same jobs.

Rademacher indicated the unions had eased these wage demand when he said, "We recognize the pressures. We are willing to make an accommodation."

Cable cut; 200 lose service of phones

Some 200 customers of Central Telephone Co. were without service late Saturday after someone set fire to a company cable. The act, one of a series of incidents which has plagued the company during the last four weeks, was cleared up by management employees. Central employees are now in their fourth week of a strike for higher wages and better benefits and there is no indication of a breakthrough in negotiations. Picketers interviewed Saturday said most were willing to hold out for awhile, but some are beginning to feel the pinch and may seek other employment.

Hoffman tax vote in fall?

Hoffman Estates officials are accumulating information to help decide if they should go to the voters this fall and ask for more money. The possibility of a tax referendum is looming in the suburb as village officials attempt to meet the growing costs of government. A $2 million referendum in November would cover street and sidewalk repairs and purchase of equipment.

Armed robber foiled at Jo Jo's

From weekend police blotters:
An armed robber at JoJo's Restaurant in Schaumburg was foiled when he appeared at the back door of the eatery with an automatic pistol and told the manager to open the safe. The manager walked from table to table in the restaurant, telling customers to leave the building, and then walked out with them and summoned police. The robber got away.

• A Purolet Security Co. agent told police he was returning from a check collecting detail on Meacham Road when two men on motorcycles tried to stop his car at gunpoint. The man said the robber brandished a revolver from his motorcycle and motioned him to pull over. The agent did so and then ran to a nearby house and pounded on the door. The motorcycle robbers fled.

• A Buffalo Grove man got into trouble when he allegedly threatened another man with a tire iron after a driving mishap in Schaumburg. The man is James Donovan, 39, and when he was arrested, police also charged him with avoiding numerous parking violations in Chicago.

Ozone watch issued in city

The Chicago Dept. of Environmental Control Sunday called an ozone watch for the city as ozone levels reached .087 parts per million at one monitoring station. The watch was the eighth of the year, a department spokesman said, adding that hot, humid, muggy weather in the area contributed to the increased ozone levels. The department urged persons with heart and respiratory problems to limit their outdoor activities.

cent); and Arlington Heights-Northwest Highway, 14 (1.6 per cent).

Aldrich said the severity of the accidents is something to examine closely. For example, the Euclid Avenue-Wilke Road intersection had six accidents, three of them involving injuries. He said drivers apparently did not notice stop signs until the village put up an overhead, flashing-red light about a month-and-a-half ago. Since the light was installed, no accidents have been reported there, he said.

Rolling Meadows

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case said a 1.3-mile stretch of Algonquin Road between Wilke Road and Ill. Rte. 53 had the most accidents in the city. A total of 51 accidents was recorded through mid-June. "Most of them were the kind where they stick their nose out and get clipped," Case said.

Mount Prospect

The top five accident spots in Mount Prospect during the first half of the year were Kensington and Rand roads, 20 accidents; Dempster Street and Busse Road, 13; Golf Road and Ill. Rte. 83, 13; Kensington Road and Ill. Rte. 83, 11; and Rand and Central roads, 10.

Buffalo Grove

In Buffalo Grove, nearly a third of the village's accidents this year were reported on Dundee Road between Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights roads. Sixteen of those accidents were at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, 18 at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads and 10 at Ill. Rte. 83 and Arlington Heights Road.

Palatine

Northwest Highway and Palatine Road in Palatine had the highest amount of intersection accidents through this year's first four months. About 7.5 per cent (18) of the 242 accidents occurred there. Also, Northwest Highway between Ill. Rte. 53 and Rohlwing Road had about 8.7 per cent (21).

Sgt. Raymond Smyk cited rough road conditions, a large number of businesses, heavy traffic and improper left turns as reasons for high-accident rates at those locations.

Des Plaines

In Des Plaines during the last year, a six-mile stretch of River Road had 143 accidents. Its intersections with Central and Golf roads and Miner Street have a lot of mishaps.

Sgt. Kenneth Rottman said the state highway is in poor condition. "It's treacherous in the outside lane. It's virtually impossible to maintain control of your car."

He said if the road were to be widened and turn bays and left-turn signals installed, the city's accident rate would drop significantly.

Rottman also said Wolf Road through the city is an accident prone area.

Wheeling

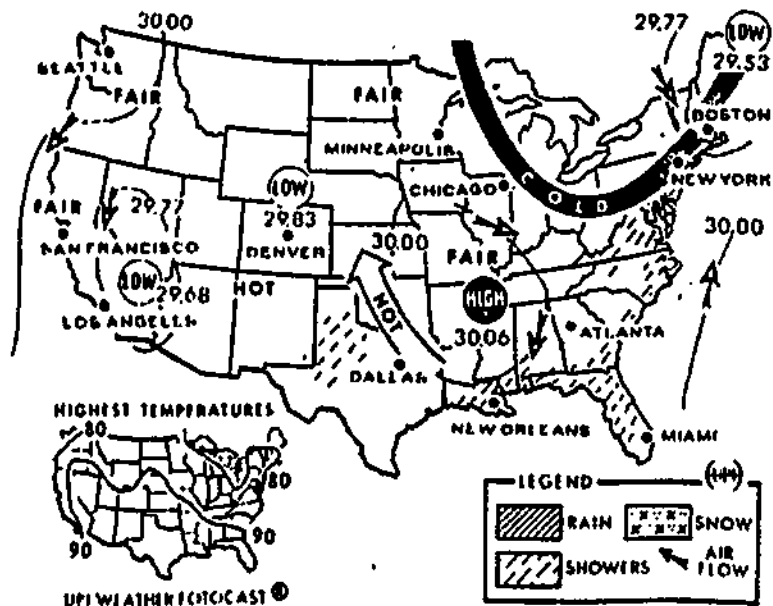

Wheeling police say the top accident area in their village is Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee Road, simply because of traffic volume at the intersection. Dundee Road is the main east-west roadway through the village and generates more traffic than other areas, they say.

However, police note that when Lake-Cook Road is improved through Wheeling a lot of the congestion on Dundee will be relieved and accident rates there will probably decline.

JFK death may have been in retaliation: Schweiker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., suggested Sunday that the 1963 murder of President John F. Kennedy may have been in retaliation for repeated American attempts on the life of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, and the investigation into his death could be reopened.

He also said Senate CIA investigators have found "no direct evidence that exonerates" Dwight D. Eisenhower, Kennedy, Lydon B. Johnson or Richard M. Nixon from assassination plots against foreign leaders.

He said Nixon, the only former President now living, may be called to testify about "several things" as the investigation of alleged CIA abuses continues.

Schweiker, a member of the Senate panel probing the CIA, said he doesn't differ with statements by Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, that there is no evidence linking any President with political assassination plots.

"But on the other hand, I think it's only fair to say there is no direct evidence that exonerates a President from assassination attempts, and I think that's just as important," he said.

Schweiker, a member of the Senate committee investigating the Central Intelligence Agency, said "one of the spin-offs" of that probe may well be a reopening of the investigation of the Kennedy assassination.

He said he knows of no new evidence in the case but said he personally would welcome a fresh look at evidence already in hand.

Schweiker said the final report of the Warren Commission — which found that assassin Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in gunning Kennedy down in Dallas — had a "fatal flaw" in ignoring motivation for the killing.

"The Warren Commission report makes no reference and apparently it had no knowledge of the number of attempts that were launched against Castro — in killing Castro — and that was the political motivation for this situation, which is the first thing you look at," said Schweiker in a television interview.

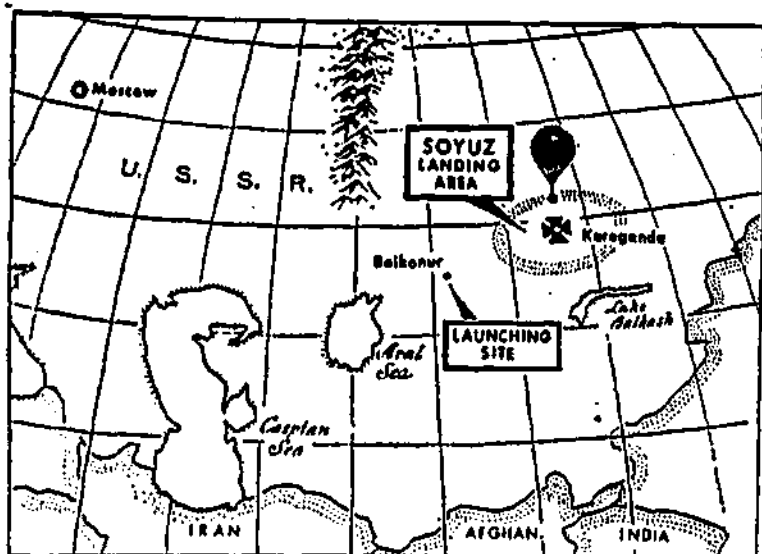

He said there was "not one reference" to Castro in the report even though Allen Dulles, who headed the CIA during the period when plots on the Cuban leader's life began, was a member of the Warren Commission.

And, he said, an "obscure" newspaper story he just found revealed that Castro in September, 1963, just two months before Kennedy was shot, threatened publicly to retaliate if there were attempts on the lives of Cuban leaders.

"U.S. leaders would be in danger if they helped in any attempt to do away with leaders of Cuba," Schweiker quoted Castro from the story. "We are prepared to fight them and answer them in kind. If they are aiding terrorist plans to eliminate Cuban leaders, they themselves will not be saved."

Schweiker said he was not "making any accusations" about whether the Warren Commission deliberately evaded the motivation question but said he personally would welcome a renewed inquiry.

NEWSMAP spots sites of the Soyuz launching and landing areas. Soyuz is to return to earth today at 5:50 a.m. CDT.

Soyuz crew heads home

Apollo trio studies fish behavior

HOUSTON (UPI) — With their space ships drifting apart at 13 miles an hour, three Apollo astronauts Sunday studied fish behavior in orbit and two Soyuz cosmonauts test-fired a rocket for their return home to earth.

The world's first international space mission, which included two historic days of linked flight by Soyuz and Apollo, was ending.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov were ready for their 5:50 a.m. CDT landing today in the Soviet Union. Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald "Deke" Slayton will follow the cosmonauts back to earth Thursday, splashing down in the Pacific Ocean.

Sunday was the sixth anniversary of man's first landing on the moon, the "giant leap for mankind" by Apollo 11 on July 20, 1969, that cemented America's lead in the space race.

The men of Soyuz and Apollo, whose historic flight as a single crew turned rivalry to cooperation, planned no ceremonies to mark the touchdown by Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin in the lunar Sea of Tranquility.

Leonov and Kubasov, satisfied their green and silver ship had not been damaged by an unexpectedly hard jolt in its final docking with Apollo, reported themselves in "perfect health" and went to bed early.

The twisting jolt during the final linkup test, apparently caused by sun glare that momentarily blinded Slayton and threw off his aim toward a Soyuz docking target, worried Soviet controllers. But after the Soyuz crew performed an extra check for leaks in their craft, controllers reported there apparently was no damage.

The cosmonauts conducted a complete dress rehearsal of their departure from orbit, doing everything at the precise geographical location where they would perform it if they were really starting home.

Flying 135 miles above the Atlantic off the west coast of Africa they even fired a four-second burst of the 920-pound thrust braking rocket that was to start their fiery trip down through earth's atmosphere. Apollo's light path would put it 495 miles behind the Russians at the time of Monday's firing.

Stafford, Brand and Slayton flew their white Apollo in a higher, slower orbit behind Soyuz, dropping 20 miles behind the Russian spaceship with each trip around the globe. They will stay aloft until Thursday studying life in space, the earth below and the heavens above in the name of science.

Slayton kept watch over two bags of small fish hanging on Apollo's cabin wall, continuing an experiment that started with the discovery aboard America's Skylab space station in 1973 that fish become confused in weightlessness and sometimes swam in backward flips.

"You may be happy to know the fish farm is doing well," Slayton told Houston control. Soyuz will return to earth near the wheat belt town of Arkalyk in Soviet Central Asia, 1,250 miles southeast of Moscow.

Makarios warns of U.S. arms to Turkey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Several thousand Greek-Americans rallying here Sunday on the first anniversary of the invasion of Cyprus heard a message from Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus, warning that resumption of U.S. military aid to Turkey would be "disastrous to peace."

In a telegram read to the rally and opposing President Ford's proposed resumption of arms aid, Makarios said the action would deepen the Cypriot crisis and threaten stability of the Mediterranean area.

"Defenseless people are being oppressed with American arms at the hands of the Turks . . ." Makarios said.

"Resumption of American arms to Turkey would be disastrous to peace in our region. We will continue our struggle no matter how long it will be; no matter how great the sacrifices."

Just the mention of Makarios' name brought a roar from the flag-waving, sign-bearing crowd on the lawn of the Capitol estimated at about 4,000 by Capt. Eugene Brannon of the District of Columbia police. One of the organizers said most had come from New York on charter buses.

In sweltering 90-degree heat preceding a thunderstorm, the demonstrators scheduled a march down Pennsylvania Avenue for a second rally in Lafayette Park across from the White House. The day's events began with a service at the Greek Orthodox Cathedral of St. Sophia led by Archbishop Iakovos of North and South America to mark the anniversary of the invasion.

Congress slapped a ban on arms aid to Turkey until the Cyprus crisis could be resolved, but Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger have lobbied hard for its restoration — particularly after Turkey threatened to close down some or all of U.S. bases in that country.

The Senate agreed 41 to 40 to the restoration, and the House has scheduled a vote this week on a compromise approved by the International Affairs Committee. It would allow the shipment of weaponry which Turkey had paid for before the ban, but continue to prohibit new grants and credits for military assistance until the regular foreign aid bill is passed later this year.

In Nicosia, Cyprus, Makarios told an estimated 50,000 persons in Nicosia's Eleftheria (Freedom) Square that "the Turkish Atilla will not restrain his appetite and will not come to his senses unless practical measures are taken against him."

The Turkish invasion of the island July 20, 1974 was code-named Atilla.

Turkey meantime, marked the anniversary by creating a new army. The Izmir-based Fourth Army will man Turkey's west Aegean coast-current flashpoint in hostile relations with Greece.

"Our first principle is to find peaceful solutions to differences with our neighbors, but that is not enough for peace," Defense minister Ferit Melen said.

"The purpose of the Aegean army is to defend our national security," he said.

Apartment blast in Jerusalem; 8 hurt, 2 dead

By United Press International

An explosion ripped through three middle floors of an eight-story Jerusalem apartment building in the Jewish sector Sunday, killing two children and wounding eight persons, Israeli officials said.

The main Arab guerrilla group, the Palestine Liberation Organization, claimed credit for the blast and said it was set off by a time bomb placed by Arab infiltrators.

Jerusalem police, however, ruled out sabotage and said the explosion was caused by a faulty gas-operated water boiler.

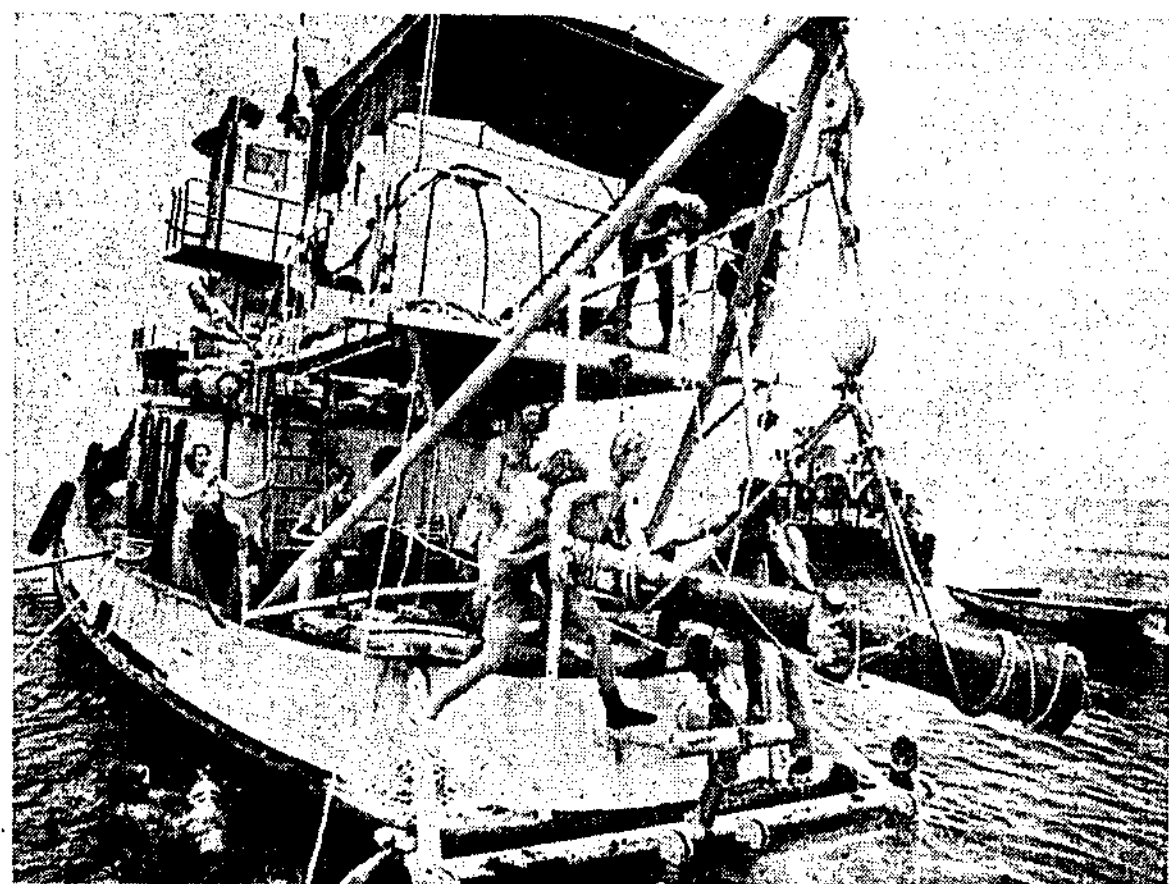

The explosion came as Israeli officials expressed "cautious optimism" that a new interim peace settlement could be reached with Egypt despite Cairo's threat not to renew the mandate of the U.N. peacekeeping force on the Sinai front.

The Israeli national radio said Egyptian forces in Sinai had taken "a number of military measures" as the Thursday U.N. mandate expiration date neared, but an Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv denied it.

"There is normal vigilance on both sides," he said.

An Israeli official said that the key to a settlement is Egypt's response to Israeli proposals taken to Cairo Sunday by U.S. ambassador Hermann F. Eilts, who flew in from Washington where Israel officials relayed the new plan. Diplomatic sources said Eilts was immediately summoned to the residence of Egypt's President Anwar Sadat and met with him and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy in presenting the peace proposals.

In the Jerusalem explosion, five of the wounded were children.

SKIPPER OF THE North Wind, Dirk Fisher, grabs Tragedy struck early Sunday when their converted ancient cannon during salvage operation last week. ed tugboat capsized, drowning three.

Tragedy strikes galleon salvage team

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Three members of a salvage crew seeking to recover a $100-million treasure aboard a sunken Spanish galleon drowned early Sunday when their converted tugboat capsized at anchor in the Gulf of Mexico "probably" while they were sleeping.

The dead included the 21-year-old skipper of the tug Northwind and his wife and a diver.

A spokeswoman for the salvage company said "between 10 and 14" persons were aboard the treasure tug when she rolled over a few miles off the Marquesas at the tip of the Florida Keys.

Bleth McHaley, vice president of Treasure Salvors Inc., owner of the Northwind identified the dead as Dirk Fisher, 21, skipper of the tug; his wife, Angela, about 21, both of Key West; and Rick Gage, New York City, one of the divers employed by the salvage firm.

Ms. McHaley said the Northwind returned to the treasure site Saturday after dropping off bronze cannons and other artifacts recovered from the 50-foot depths where the wreck of "Nuestra Señora de Atocha" is believed to lie.

The Spanish treasure galleon was wrecked during a 1622 hurricane with a cargo now valued at $100 million aboard.

She said the Northwind and another boat owned by the company then went to the "regular night anchorage," in the lee of the Marquesas and about five miles off the island. All aboard both vessels went to sleep after they were anchored.

Treasure Salvors announced last week that 10 bronze cannons, worth about $20,000 each and identified as part of the battery of the "Atocha," had been found 50 feet below the surface of the Gulf. The firm said it believes the treasure lies in a pool of quicksand and silt nearby known to divers as the "mud hole."

Aspin charges secret agreements by U.S.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., charged Sunday the United States has concluded 29 secret agreements with foreign countries since August, 1972, covering atomic energy, weapons storage and defense. In a letter to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger which he released to the press, Aspin cited the Freedom of Information Act and asked Kissinger to provide copies of each agreement or at least an unclassified summary. Aspin also charged the secrecy surrounding these agreements violates a provision of the U.N. charter calling for the publication of international agreements of its members.

Automakers OK cost-price information

The four U.S. automakers say they will comply with a government request for cost and price information — a move which could set the stage for "jawboning" over prices on 1976 models. The government's watchdog on wage and price hikes, the Council on Wage and Price Stability, has requested the information by Aug. 1. The new models won't be introduced until early October.

The Council is the successor to the Cost of Living Council which controlled all increases from August 1971 through April 1974.

Portugal military backs Gen. Goncalves

Portugal's military rulers in Lisbon Sunday threw their support behind Communist-backed prime minister "Comrade" Gen. Troops fired in the air near Lisbon's international airport to break up fistfights Saturday night, and a soldier was reported killed during an anti-Communist demonstration in Aveiro. Fifteen persons were reported injured in other riots, mostly in the conservative north.

OAS near decision on Cuba sanction meet

Diplomats Sunday were reported near a decision to call a conference here later this month to discuss ending mandatory sanctions against Cuba. Delegates of the Organization of American States meeting here to update a 1947 defense treaty said it appeared almost certain foreign ministers from member nations would hold a conference in San Jose, Costa Rica to discuss the issue.

Miss Universe remains dazed by her victory

• Anne Pohlman of Finland, sleepy from dancing half the night after her selection as Miss Universe 1975, posed for traditional breakfast-in-bed pictures Sunday morning. She joked, "I slept all night with my crown on." The green-eyed blonde (34-24-34) still seemed dazed by her win over 70 other contestants. Her triumph brought her riches — $22,500 in cash awards and other gifts — as well as fame. Three contestants who fainted during the closing phase of the competition Saturday night were reported recovered. They were Miss Japan, Miss Bermuda, and Miss Morocco.

• Jeha Stonehouse, the British member of Parliament extradited from Australia to face 21 charges of fraud, theft, forgery and conspiracy, was on a hunger strike Sunday in Brixton jail in London. Stonehouse disappeared Nov. 20, 1974 after faking death by drowning in Miami. He has been denied bail.

• Deaths: Veteran country music star William Orville Frizzell, 47, in Nashville, after suffering a "massive stroke." Funeral arrangements were incomplete for the singer who had such hits as "Saginaw, Michigan," and "Always Late." . . . In San Francisco, Modoc, 78 the oldest elephant in captivity, a victim of old age and ingrown toenail. Zoo officials in San Francisco said Modoc was put to sleep because of complications from foot surgery. Modoc was with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus for 53 years. After her circus career, she was exiled to a roadside zoo in Tennessee where a drunken circus keeper blinded her in one eye. Modoc was then purchased and taken to Hollywood.

He was preceded in death by two sisters, Angelina Wiess and Mae Bayne, and a brother, Edward Cieslak.

Your joints change with arthritis

My husband recently completed a series of tests and learned he is suffering from rheumatoid spondylitis, Marie Strumpell arthritis. This condition seemed to come from an old injury of some 30 years ago. What is the future of such a condition?

This is sometimes called a variant of rheumatoid arthritis. The basic changes in the joints are about the same.

The unique feature of the disease is that it usually strikes young men (in about 90 per cent of the cases) in their later teens or early 20s. It begins with involvement of the sacroiliac joints, where the spine joins the large hip bones, of the pelvis. The initial complaint is often low back pain. Examination of the spine, even with X-rays, may not show anything. It is not hard to realize, then, that an otherwise healthy, strong, young man may get tagged with a label of a malingerer or a hypochondriac, when in fact he has a serious problem.

The only way the diagnosis can be made in most cases at the beginning is from X-rays of the sacroiliac joints, not the spine.

Later the involvement of the joints my spread up the spine, and the nature of the illness becomes obvious. The joints in the spine may become fused, giving the patient a "poker spine." He won't be able to bend over normally because of his stiff back.

The usual tests for rheumatoid arthritis may be negative. This too makes early diagnosis difficult.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

I should point out to you that the cause of rheumatoid spondylitis is unknown. It is not believed to be associated in any way with an injury. I would suspect that your husband's old injury is unrelated to his disease.

The treatment of rheumatoid spondylitis is essentially the same as that for rheumatoid arthritis.

In nearly a third of the patients other joints in the body, particularly the knees, will become involved. This may be temporary, and the joints recover entirely. In other instances the joints continue to show progressive changes, and the disease becomes almost indistinguishable from ordinary rheumatoid arthritis.

It is fair to say that the disease is often milder than many cases of common rheumatoid arthritis. There may be intermittent attacks of low back pain and between attacks the patient may feel fairly well. Of course, if the while spine becomes fixed, the normal flexibility is lost and causes difficulty. So, there is a good chance that your husband will be able to live a normal life span with the disease and have a minimum of problems from it, compared to a full-blown case of rheumatoid arthritis.

It is important, though, that all such patients be under medical care. There is a great deal that can be done to limit joint involvement and to maintain normal joint function. This is a fairly continuous program. Regular evaluations from a physician to spot early problems and take corrective action often means the difference between serious crippling and the capacity to lead a fairly normal life.

THE VILLAGE blood drive drew these volunteer donors to Wheeling High School Saturday to help the community meet its quota for emergency blood care. On the tables are Violet Brumen and Vorma Sanelli, both of Wheeling, who were among dozens of local men and women at the Saturday session.

Allstate to seek permits for auto-storage unit

Allstate Insurance Co. will ask the Wheeling Village Board tonight to issue building permits for its proposed auto mobile storage facility even though zoning for the project has been questioned.

Allstate officials are scheduled to meet with the real estate and zoning committee prior to the board meeting to discuss the matter. The company wants to build on a 21-acre site it owns near the Soo Line R.R. on Frontage Road off Palatine Road.

The property is zoned for heavy industrial use and was purchased in 1973 based on this zoning category.

HOWEVER, THE village board last week voted to eliminate three allowable uses from the I-3 zoning category including temporary storage of inoperable cars.

Village Atty. John Burke said the board may have to allow the Allstate request because the land was purchased in 1973 contingent on the zoning. Burke said because of this the company could claim a legal right to a type of grandfather clause.

A grandfather clause protects facilities which are currently engaged in any of the three now-eliminated classes because they were in effect before the zoning changes.

Burke last week told the board that courts usually uphold cases such as the Allstate situation in which the planner has purchased land contingent on the zoning and has spent substantial sums of money based on the zoning.

In such cases where zoning categories have been eliminated, existing facilities are usually granted non-conforming use permits. Allstate could apply for such a permit.

ALLSTATE PLANS call for the facility to include a 68,000-square-foot office-garage building, an inspection field where cars would be examined, a holding area for storage of up to 800 cars and an area where cars which are cleared by title will be auctioned to licensed salvage buyers.

Other matters to come before the board include preliminary consideration of an appropriations ordinance for the current fiscal year which began May 1. Village officials have been working on a budget which will be used to determine the appropriations ordinance but no figures have been released.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 235 W. Dundee Rd. The meeting with Allstate officials will begin at 7 p.m. in the village hall committee room.

2 park districts seek same area

erendum — giving residents of the area a chance to choose which park district they wanted to join — might be a good idea. Phillips said his board did not discuss such a possibility, although he added that it would not be immediately ruled out.

It is estimated that some 5,000 persons live in the area, which includes such apartment complexes as Gladstone Glen, Lake Run, Quince Park, Orchard and Birchwood Traces, Loch Lomond and Willow-River. There are no parks in the area, although there is a play area at Stevenson School, in the northwest section of the proposed annexation area. The school itself already is in the Wheeling Park District.

Ask Andy

Monkey's nose trumpets warning

Andy sends a complete 26-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Shane Miller, 11, of St. Paul, Minn., for his question:

WHAT IS THE PROBOSCIS MONKEY LIKE?

This fellow stands out in a crowd of ordinary monkeys. Instead of chattering and swinging through the trees, we are likely to spot him sitting quietly on a bough, dreamily gazing off into space. Unlike other monkeys, he likes to swim. And also unlike other monkeys, he has a most outstanding nose.

The word proboscis means a long, pliable nose, such as the elephant's trunk. Most monkeys have flat noses, usually with rather wide nostrils. But the leaf-eating langur monkeys have more human-shaped noses — and one of them has a nose that can be termed a proboscis. He spends his entire life in the tropical trees of Borneo.

The mother's little baby has a turned-up nose. The young adult has a pliable nose flap, perhaps three inches long. The proboscis of an elderly male may be seven inches long, with the tip dropping down over his mouth. He is not a talkative monkey, though his remarkable proboscis enables him to trumpet a resounding honk-kee-honk.

SOME 20 leaf-eating langurs inhabit various territories throughout India and Southeast Asia. Most of them stay in the treetops, where they live on a meatless menu of assorted vegetation. They tend to favor rather gaudy outfits, with bright patches of fur and bare skin. Several species have small nose flaps or funny turned-up noses.

The proboscis monkey wears a shaggy coat of red fur, set off with a pearly gray tinge in his sleeves and nose. His head and body are about two-and-a-half feet long. His monkey-type tail is used for balancing, unlike the prehensile tails of New World monkeys.

He shares his life with a troop of 20 or so friends and relatives, including several other males. These monkeys prefer a home where the damp forest dips down to a mango swamp — for they are just about the only monkeys in the world who really enjoy the water. They go for a dip almost every day — and the frisky youngsters often dive down from a bough 50 feet above the water.

Up in the treetops these smallish monkeys can perch on the slender twigs, which makes them safe from large predators. This changes when they descend to the ground. However, when danger approaches, the old male trumpets a warning honk-kee-honk. The stragglers dive into the water and paddle away like a group of panicky puppies.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Michael DiBacco, 10, of Niagara Falls, Ont., Canada, for his question:

HOW DO METEOR SHOWERS OCCUR?

When you watch the starry heavens for an hour or so, you are sure to see at least one meteor streak across the sky. Some people call it a shooting star or a falling star. Chances are it is a grain of solid minerals, glowing with heat as it plummets down through the atmosphere, usually alone. But on certain nights dozens of meteors arch down from the same region in the sky. These are called meteor showers.

Most experts agree that meteor showers are caused by passing comets. As a visiting comet swings close around the sun, long streamers of dusty fragments are left behind by its tail. When the orbiting earth crosses this debris, tiny fragments are captured by gravity and come plunging down as meteors. Together they create a shower of meteors.

Win at bridge

Trump suit misplays easily

Jim: "On many occasions we have discussed the slight extra chance that the real expert gives himself when it is there."

Oswald: "In the ordinary bridge game South loses little or no time in finding a way to misplay the trump suit. He wins the club lead and promptly leads a low trump toward dummy. West follows with the seven and the king or jack is played. East shows out and some ten minutes later South has lost his two trump tricks."

Jim: "The ten minutes elapsed at the end is typical. He starts to think when the time for thinking is long past."

Oswald: "A little thought before leading to trick two would show South that his slam would be cold against anything but a 4-0 trump break. Further thought would show him that if East held all four trumps nothing could be done but that there was a way to handle four trumps in the West hand."

Oswald: "That way would be for South to play his queen of trumps at trick two. West could do not better than take his ace. Later on South would finesse twice against the ten-ace and make his slam."

Shirts come out of their corner

Fashion

by Karen

One of the most eye-catching and improved segments of the fashion industry is men's and women's shirts.

Now, because of the diversity of styles, color prints and designs, what was relegated to a small corner of most stores has become an entire department.

The man most responsible for the move from ordinary shirts to the beautiful, fanciful and bizarre designs shown everywhere today is Gian Franco Ruffini.

Ruffini set off on his designing career in a family bedspread business in Como, Italy. He found that so monotonous he turned to designing sports shirts.

WHAT BEGAN IN 1970 as simple tie-dyeing has today grown into a business that sells nearly $100 million worth of sports shirts a year. His designs have greatly influenced the entire shirt industry.

A photographer and connoisseur of the arts, Ruffini has revolutionized the sports shirt industry with his exclusive patented process, photographic engraving.

Under the name Nik-Nik shirts, Ruffini started out with Art Nouveau designs, a form of art created in the 1890s by a group of Belgian architects whose influence led to the creation of the Tiffany glass vase in America and the Metro stations and the interior of Maxim's restaurant in Paris — flowing designs that do away with straight lines.

FROM THERE, he branched into Art Deco, an art form of the 1930s which led to such creations as the Chrysler Building in New York and Radio City Music Hall. Art Deco was created in 1919 by a German named Walter Gropius and became known as the Bauhaus school of thought, which reached its peak in the Depression years.

Then it was cartoons for Ruffini. Then ecology. Now it's photo engraving, a process that allows the use of 22 different tones of color in a single print. Ruffini and his design team create more than 1,100 new print designs a year, with customers requesting more of the old as well.

One super-realistic design shows a color photograph of an astronaut in full gear printed on the back of a shirt. Titles on new fall designs include "The Proposal," "The Parlor" and "Graffiti," among many others.

RUFFINI STARTED with designs sold only in Italy. They spread to France, Spain, Scandinavia and then to the U.S. in 1970. The shirts, originally designed for men are now purchased by women 60 per cent of the time.

"I love to see people happy and my prints are specifically designed to make them happy," said Ruffini. "People feel good when they wear a Nik-Nik shirt," he added. His fall designs were created around a theme of "love" and "communications."

Lillian Stiller

by BILLIE BACHUBER

Lillian Stiller has her fun side . . . and her serious side.

The Wheeling resident and longtime Dist. 21 (Wheeling-Buffalo Grove) school board member is serious about the educational needs of children. But she's not stuffy about it.

Favoring, among other innovations, practical experience courses in elementary grades, Lillian admits she might have benefited from such education herself. She remembers unplugging a sink clogged with wet tissues when her own children (Steven, 21; Susan, 19, and James, 13) were younger. Using a coat hanger to do the job, she just knew there must be an easier way.

AND WHEN husband Jack, who's in free lance newspaper production, suggested she take out the garbage while he sowed on a loose button, "I got the message," Lillian recalled with a laugh.

However, she's not quite all thumbs at home. Steven once invited his mother on a camping trip with him and his friends — providing she would cook. She learned the hard way — by self-education, she said.

A novice cook as a bride, she tried two new recipes each week, willing to attempt just about anything in culinary arts. "And Jack suffered through it with me," she joked.

Now Mrs. Stiller's family and friends enjoy her homemade barbecue sauce and such creative dishes as her Portuguese version of paella, a hearty combination of chicken, shrimp, Italian sausage and pork steak put together with chicken broth, sauces and rice, then baked. She'd like to write a cookbook some day.

LILLIAN IS interested in other kinds of writing, too. With a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan, she once reported board meetings and other news and wrote features for a community newspaper, the Wheeling Independent. As a member of the Wheeling Public Relations Commission, she wrote and edited copy for its quarterly newsletter and in the past wrote a neighborhood column for Paddock Publications.

Right now Lillian gives most of her attention to her family and to local education. She separates the two responsibilities, but applies the same principles to both. "Communication is the key," she says.

Mrs. Stiller thinks she probably was influenced by the fact her mother was active in PTA and her father, as a county supervisor and health commission chairman, was very concerned for the health of grade school children.

ONCE HER OWN children reached school age, Lillian, too, became concerned and active in school affairs — at three different ones at the same time when she had children in all three. She worked as room mother, served on various PTA boards and was publicity chairman for "ump-teen" organizations.

An appointment to the first Dist. 21 Citizens Committee gave Lillian a springboard to school board commitment. She got her first look at education from the vantage point of finances, legislation, curriculum needs and facilities.

She recalls this exposure engendered some dissatisfaction within her about local education, for instance, the long-standing lack of industrial arts facilities. She wanted more and better communication between taxing bodies and strongly supported hiring an art coordinator — something the district now has, she noted with a smile.

WHAT MAKES A good school board member? After nine years experience, Lillian has her own ideas on that.

"To function effectively as a board member, one should be a good listener, receptive to new ideas, consider both sides of an issue and be willing to learn while using tact."

Because she's at home, Lillian works overtime answering telephone queries and explaining board actions. "It's a labor of love," she says, adding that she's proud of the parental interest in Dist. 21. "Parents show their interest by the way they vote in referenda," she said.

Mrs. Stiller takes a strong stand against eliminating what she thinks is necessary to a good education. "I favor cutting back, not cutting out," she said.

She's also against interdistrict busing and teacher's strikes. "You can't educate children on buses or with teachers out of classrooms."

BESIDES HER time at board meetings, Lillian represents the board on various committees, the latest the Bicentennial Committee. "I volunteered to coordinate activities for 17 schools."

To keep abreast of education, she reads three daily newspapers, all board minutes and other board-related material that comes into her hands. "If you are serious about board membership, you must be prepared."

She had to relinquish membership in her bridge club and the Wheeling Junior Woman's Club, but she still attends Good Shepherd Lutheran Church where the family are charter members, taking part in a discussion group there.

Vacations are often spent in northern Michigan where the Stillers have relatives. In her leisure time Lillian and Jack refinish furniture and cycle around the neighborhood. And there's always cooking!

SCHOOL MAY BE OUT for students but not for Lillian Stiller, elected last spring to her fourth term as a Dist. 21 board of education member. As a leisure activity she and her husband, Jack, like refinishing furniture. Here Lillian takes advantage of good weather to steel wool a chair outdoors.

ROTC summer camp goes coed

by BOB WESTON

FT. KNOX, Ky. — Watching a sweet young thing doing pushups under a broiling sun and the stern eye of a tough Army drill sergeant is enough to jar anyone's sensitivity.

Yet it is not an uncommon sight at Ft. Knox this month. Nearly 200 women are undergoing six weeks of intensive basic training alongside 700 male colleagues in the first coeducational Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) summer camp in U.S. Army history. They eat together, march together, attend classes together, and even sleep in the same barracks although on different floors. And they are subjected to the same discipline.

At least, their drill sergeants — male and female alike — say they don't intend to be any easier on the girls under their command than they are on their male counterparts.

"Our biggest problem in training these girls is the language barrier," said Staff Sgt. Julius Kimmle. "We realize we've got to watch our language and that makes it kind of rough because sometimes you say things without realizing it."

It used to be that to take away the curse words in a drill instructor's vocabulary was to render him speechless. But this is a different Army, according to Kimmle.

"I THINK TO myself 'You wouldn't want your sister to hear language like that, and it helps keep me from using it,'" he said, during a break from a marching drill. "That's the only difference from training an all-male unit. We're going to treat these women the same as men and, when they screw up, they're going to do pushups in ranks just like any of the male cadets would."

Lt. Col. Donald Kingston (cq), public information officer for the summer camp program, said he sympathizes with the situation facing the drill instructors.

"They are working with young men and women who are strictly volunteers under no binding contract," Kingston said. "The way this program is set up under law, any time any of these cadets don't like it, they can just walk out and we can't do anything about it. Under those circumstances, it would be awfully rough to maintain discipline if these young trainees weren't so highly motivated."

The obligation is all on the other side — with the Army. The cadets are recruited by professors of military sciences at colleges across the country for the six-week summer program in lieu of taking ROTC their first two years in college. The Army hopes they will return to their schools in the fall and enroll in advanced ROTC for the remaining two years of college.

WHILE HERE, the cadets receive the same pay as Army privates earn ($340 a month), plus travel expenses to and from Ft. Knox, their room, board, medical care and training designed to convince them to make a career in the Army.

Except for physical training and such courses as hand-to-hand combat, women and men are given their training side by side.

"I've been in the Army off and on for the last 24 years and I never would have visualized anything like this when I first entered the service," Kingston said. "It was a man's world 24 years ago and it didn't look like there were going to be any changes."

"It's conceivable that the fellows training in this cycle will have it a little easier than the two all-male cycles we're training here this summer. On the cross-country hikes, the pace may be a little slower, the distance a little shorter and the refreshment breaks a little longer because there are women along. But I think the drop-out rate may be lower, simply because if a big husky guy sees one of these little gals making it, he's going to do a lot more thinking before he quits the program."

(United Press International)

Jars glued together make innovative plant holder

"What a lovely statuette!" I exclaimed, looking at a corner in Lois Bodley's house, where there stood a beautiful, giant candle atop a tall, slender piece. Turns out that Lois is a skilled handcrafters and makes statuette for holding such candles and plants by gluing jars together — round jars, square jars, whatever shape.

She uses old saucers of appropriate size at the tops and bases. Felt is the binding material, glued on both sides. At the point of attaching the jar covers she uses fringe on some, fancy tapes on others. Over all goes a coat of acrylic polymer-base liquid (bought at hobby stores), followed by a coat of antiquing paint when the first coat has dried well.

It's an innovative way of holding household plants in corners where nothing else could fit — and it lends itself to smaller treatments, too. Her experience led Lois to another striking venture — collecting handsome shells in Florida and gluing them in colorful patterns to a large plastic foam ball. Other handcrafters will probably find this an enticing project.

Women on panel at workshop

Five women who are active in the areas of careers, politics, homemaking, volunteerism, education and the cultural arts will talk about the quality of their lives to an all-day workshop Thursday, July 31, at Harper College.

Area secretaries attend convention

Six members of Park-Plaines Chapter, National Secretaries Association, were in Montreal, Canada, last week for the 30th annual convention and international forum of the secretaries organization. Mrs. Louise R. Kiddo, Park-Plaines president, was the delegate, with Mrs. Eleanor Guffey, treasurer, as alternate. Accompanying them for the five-day session were Miss Gloria Boye, Mrs. Trudy Gander, Miss Fern Jacobs and Mrs. Dolores Parr, members of the local group.

High School and Northern Illinois University. She has been working at Northwest Suburban YMCA, Des Plaines, as assistant aquatic program director.

HER HUSBAND, a graduate of MacMurray College, is district sales manager for A. E. Staley, Decatur, and he and his bride are making their home in Palatine.

For their double ring service, the bride wore a white Qiana gown accented with beaded appliques. With it she chose a four-tiered butterfly veil attached to a cap of Qiana and carried yellow roses, white orchids and stephanotis.

Donna Harold, her sister, of Park Forest was matron of honor, wearing a mint green Qiana, halter dress with matching cape. Her bouquet was of yellow carnations, white daisies and baby's breath.

THE THREE bridesmaids, gowned identically to Donna, were Lee Anne Doehler, Glenview, Patty McCarthy of Hoffman Estates and Mary Schindler, Arlington Heights. Their bouquets were of white carnations with yellow daisies.

Two-year-old Jimmy Harold III, the bride's nephew, served as ring bearer and the groom's brother, Tom, of Evanston was best man. Groomsmen included Bruce Lawson and Joe Slawek, both of Schaumburg, and Dick Steedum of Lisle.

Weidner-Takla nuptials held June 21

An area couple, Doris Jean Weidner of Arlington Heights and Michael Fikry Takla of Mount Prospect, were married June 21 in a rainbow setting in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Buffalo Grove.

The double ring ceremony was performed at 1:30 p.m., with a reception for 200 guests following at the Navarone in Elk Grove Village.

The bride, daughter of the Henry Weidners, chose as her matron of honor her sister, Mrs. Rosie Mack of Mount Prospect, who wore a pink gown with a matching jacket and carried a bouquet of flowers in pink, blue, yellow and apricot. She also wore a small floral arrangement in her hair.

ANITA CUNNINGHAM of Arlington Heights, Tanya Simpson of Minnesota and Mervet Takla, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids. Anita wore blue, Tanya wore apricot and Mervet yellow, all in the same style as the matron of honor and all carrying mixed bouquets.

The groom, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fikry Takla, had his brother, David, as best man. Groomsmen were Gene Mack, the bride's brother-in-law, Doug Mitchell, the groom's cousin from Arlington Heights and Bruce Rohner of Mount Prospect.

The guests were seated by Jim Weidner, Doris' brother, and Rodger Elson, Niles. The bride's nephew, 5-year-old Kevin Weidner of Lake Zurich, was ring bearer.

THE WHITE QIANA gown and fingertip veil with matching cap that the bride wore were made by a friend, Lol Mroczkowski of Palatine, who also made the couple's wedding cake. Doris' bouquet was composed of white orchids, roses and stephanotis.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael F. Takla

She and the bridegroom have returned from a three-week honeymoon which took them to Hawaii, England, France and the Netherlands. They are making their home in Mount Prospect.

Doris works for the First National Bank, Mount Prospect, and Michael for Continental Airlines at O'Hare Airport. She is a graduate of Wheeling High School, and he graduated from Victory College in Egypt.

Bride wears mother's gown

The first day of summer began the first day of married life for Coral Lynn Teschke of Prospect Heights and David James Stafford of Twin Falls, Idaho. They exchanged vows in St. Andrew Lutheran Church, Park Ridge, and afterwards received guests at a party at the Navarone, Elk Grove Village.

Coral and her parents, the Arthur Teschkes, are formerly from Park Ridge.

Her sisters, Allyson and Leslee, were her bridesmaids and Carol Silhan, Palos Heights, was maid of honor. They all wore pastel-printed gowns with coral hats and carried coral roses and white daisies.

Gayl Teschke, the bride's younger sister, was flower girl.

THE BRIDE'S gown was of white lace with a chapel-length train, the gown her mother wore at her own wedding 25 years ago. With it, Coral wore a three-tiered veil of lace-edge illusion and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Kenneth Stafford of Moscow, Idaho, was his brother's best man, and groomsmen were Raymond Silhan, Palos Heights, and Michael Fredrick, Wheeling.

Among the wedding guests was the bride's great-grandmother, Mrs. Emily Mathews of Chicago.

Coral, a graduate of the University of Idaho, was employed by Bio Lab in Northbrook, engaged in cancer research, until her marriage. She will continue her career with the biology department of Colorado University, Fort Collins, for two years while her husband completes his study as a doctor of veterinary medicine.

Let's prevent train deaths

Every few months, a life is crushed on the tracks of the Chicago and North Western Ry. in the Northwest suburbs. Five days ago, it happened again; this time a 10-year-old Palatine boy was killed by a train while playing along the tracks at Washington and Oak streets near downtown Palatine.

The tragedy is all the more unfortunate in that a fence might have prevented the boy's death. Not until a handful of Palatine residents attended a village board meeting to tell about the hazardous area was a temporary fence installed by the village.

Now Palatine officials and representatives of the railroad are trying to determine who should pay for a permanent one. The cost is $125.

A railroad spokesman said last week, "the company has not committed the $125 needed to pay for the fence," although "it is possible the cost could be shared with the village." If the railroad won't put the fence up, then Palatine officials said the village will pay for it.

We feel the question of payment is so unimportant that it is beyond comprehension that a permanent fence is not already installed. A boy lost his life there and that is more than enough to get action.

The Palatine location is only one of the potentially hazardous spots along the railroad lines through the Northwest suburbs — a problem of which the railroad and local officials already should be aware. Fences at such locations would certainly be a positive step in solving the problem. And if a fence is necessary, local officials and the railroad must take it upon themselves to work out the financing.

In addition, regular patrols by patrolmen and warnings from railroad employees and commuters who see children playing near hazardous areas along the tracks are needed.

At the same time, parents should be aware of the hazards of the busy commuter lines. Railroad tracks obviously are not the place for children, even with such safeguards.

Just wait til I get a hold of you if you get killed playing on those tracks!

He backs Ice Spectrum purchase

Now that the dust has settled on the Palatine Park District's referendum to buy the Ice Spectrum, perhaps The Herald would like to belatedly give their readers a few arguments on the "yes" side of the issue.

Of course the indoor ice is not needed in the sense that The Herald editorial uses "need." In that context, swimming pools, tennis courts and bike trails are not needed either. I suspect that if a facility for any one sport were voted on as a separate item it would lose.

The Herald stated, "its general public use would be quite limited." The Herald could also state that our 13 tennis courts can be fully occupied by only 52 people.

How could the park district operate it at a profit when a private owner cannot? Two of several reasons are that the public body would have lower interest cost on its debt and no real estate taxes. The same question could be raised about park district operation of a golf course when many private golf courses are having financial problems and are being sold. But the Palatine Park District course pays its own way.

The Palatine and Arlington hockey programs together had about 1,000 participants this past season. There is a possibility that they will be unable to book sufficient ice time to have a program of the same size. Many parents in this area have a substantial investment in figure skating lessons for their children. The Herald will, no doubt, run more feature stories about juvenile delinquency and kids congregating with nothing to do.

The projected tax increase would have been $3 the first year and would have gone down thereafter. With the reduction in the real estate valuation multiplier from 1.48 to 1.45, 80 per cent of our tax bills will be lower than last year.

Would you pay $3 to make certain that your neighbor's child had a place to skate? Dear Editor, Scrooge would have been proud of you.

Rips rezoning

Dear Mayor Behrel:

We were appalled when we read in our Des Plaines paper that your opinion regarding the rezoning of 666 Garland Place is so biased. Your statement concerning Alderman Koplos, and the remark you made about those who signed our petition whom you referred to as "window dressing" was in very poor taste. Your duties as the mayor of the city of Des Plaines demands more integrity than was shown by your statements. Perhaps you have forgotten that the citizens of the first ward and those whom you quoted as window dressing helped to vote you into office, not those who gave such eloquent speeches from Forest Hospital since none of them are citizens of Des Plaines.

Our city clerk, Mrs. Rohrbach, openly admitted that she is also in favor of the Garland Place rezoning. Do not let the concerns of the people of Des Plaines interest her? As a possible mayor candidate, we would think that Mrs. Rohrbach would also realize that it is the people, not hospital spokesmen, that elect our highest city official.

The mayor of our city, and Mrs. Rohrbach should be concerned with the safety of the children of Des Plaines. Rand Park is only one block away from the proposed rezoning and with the past bad experiences North School has had with the hospital they are a threat to security. We, the people of the first ward, have had very frightening experiences over the years since Forest Hospital came to Des Plaines. It is not an uncommon occurrence for patients to wander off the grounds of Forest Hospital. If the rezoning is approved at 666 Garland Place, the river will no longer be a barrier between Rand Park and the present Forest Hospital. What will stop patients at the proposed site from wandering over to Rand Park and endangering the children who use the facilities at the park?

God bless Alderman Koplos, Alderman Szabo and those aldermen who so gallantly are fighting for our rights in the first ward!

World traveler Kissinger seeks policy support in 'heartlands'

by HELEN THOMAS

UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is traveling around the country drumming up support for President Ford's foreign policy. In some ways he looks like a political campaigner but Kissinger has no apparent intention of running for office.

He traveled to Milwaukee and Minneapolis last week to deliver a series of speeches articulating his rationale for détente with the Soviet Union and what he called "the moral foundations of foreign policy."

Kissinger got the idea at a dinner party in Washington when he spoke glibly of the sentiments in the "heartland." A reporter turned to him and asked, "What do you know about the feelings in the heartland?"

World traveler Kissinger, who has racked up hundreds of thousands of air miles in his globe-girdling diplomacy, had to admit that his acquaintance with Middle America was somewhat wanting.

So he decided to embark on his crusade for many reasons, not the least of which also is to enhance his own popularity.

Since Ford became President Aug. 9, rumors have recurred from time to time that Kissinger is on his way out. Kissinger is the first to deny that he has any intention of resigning and says his tenure will run at least until Jan. 20, 1977, inauguration day.

Kissinger's stock has been at a low ebb in recent months in Washington because of the failures of American foreign policy in Indochina and setbacks in his shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East and in the attempts to bring about an agreement between Turkey and Greece over Cyprus.

Kissinger also lost ground with liberals in the country when he admitted that he submitted the names of his National Security Council staff and four newsmen to be wiretapped.

After revelations of Kissinger's role in the wiretapping during the Nixon administration, he staged a stormy tirade in Salzburg, Austria and threatened to resign unless he got a vote of confidence from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He got it.

In some ways, Kissinger seems to be asking the American people for a vote of confidence and to bolster the backing he needs to restore some of the foreign policy making power to the executive branch. Judging from his own personal appeal, he can be a winner.

Kissinger never shows up at an airport or at a gathering where he is lionized like a movie star both at home and abroad. He has a superstar status and frankly admits an ego which has not diminished despite the recent attacks on him.

Kissinger admits that he may be the cause of some of his own problems. "I have a first rate intellect and a third rate instinct about people," he says.

He is very jealous and possessive of the two hats he wears — as secretary of state and Ford's national security affairs adviser. A recent presidential panel recommended that those two jobs be separated, but bent over backwards to praise Kissinger for his performance in handling both positions.

Kissinger sometime appears to conduct foreign policy under his own hat. Correspondents who cover him daily have even been known to write that Kissinger is touring the country to defend "his foreign policy."

A couple of years ago, there were trial balloons proposing that there be a constitutional amendment that would permit a naturalized citizen — such as Kissinger — to become President of the United States.

Nothing came of that idea but Kissinger has some supporters who think he might make a good president.

Fourth celebrations deserve village aid

There's something special about this nation's traditional community Fourth of July celebrations, and they should not be allowed to vanish in the future because of lack of funds.

This year, for example, the organizers of Arlington Heights Festival '75 report they lost money for the first time in three years. The chairman suggests that the Village of Arlington Heights should "participate more in physical and financial ways."

We aren't suggesting that every privately operated festival should be bailed out by local communities. But the Fourth of July is a special kind of holiday, and if a community festival needs help from local government, then such modest help should be provided.

Fireworks, picnics and carnivals do more than commemorate a national holiday; they encourage a community to draw itself together for a single day. With our nation's 200th birthday coming up next year, this is a good time for local government to consider helping out Fourth of July observances.

PHILADELPHIA, July 21 — Benjamin Franklin submitted a series of Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union to the Continental Congress meeting as a Committee of the Whole.

Arlington surges...but so does Park Ridge

by MIKE KLEIN and ART MUGALIAN

Ten days ago, you couldn't have gotten two wooden nickels or even one barbership Indian for Arlington Heights' chances to win the American Legion Ninth District regular season or tournament championships which lead to Cook County Playoffs.

At that point, the club was settling into a three-game losing streak when Arlington Heights couldn't slap a base hit or make the crisp defensive play at nearly any cost. So the odds looked bad against them.

And it was a disappointing statement of facts for Lloyd Meyer because he had been very high on this veteran club's chances for an outstanding season.

He may be rewarded yet. The odds have greatly improved because nobody could have figured that Arlington's pitchers would throw 37 consecutive scoreless innings, most of them since Friday.

Along the way, there was John Igrasek's 10-inning no-hitter Saturday evening for a 1-0 victory over Logan Square. Mike Quade stole home, ending that ballgame as darkness settled over Recreation Park.

Arlington Heights began Saturday's Ninth District schedule just one defeat away from giving Park Ridge the regular season title and automatic bye into this week's Ninth District tournament finals which begin on Tuesday.

Tim Halas supplied Arlington with its second consecutive victory Friday evening, a 3-0 four-hitter against Logan Square. (Park Ridge won a forfeit from Wheeling.)

Paul Kastner blanked Park Ridge, 6-0, with one relief inning apiece from Bob Schmidt and Bob Huber on Saturday afternoon. That preceded Igrasek's no-hitter.

Then Sunday afternoon, the long scoreless string ended but Arlington prevailed over Wheeling, 3-2, as Schmidt tossed a four-hitter with five strikeouts.

Arlington's fifth straight victory created an 11-4 deadlock with Park Ridge. The clubs battled late Sunday afternoon at Maine South High School to determine the regular season winner.

Dave Patterson's complete game pitching performance won the regular season championship for Park Ridge, 9-3, as the winners scored in all six innings they batted. Patterson had six strikeouts and three walks.

Scott Green (4-2) took the loss for Arlington Heights. He pitched five innings on a yield of seven runs. Dave Thorstensen tossed one relief inning.

Park Ridge used the extra base hit to its distinct advantage. Jay Liggett ripped two triples while Ron Parker tripled once and Joe Pagone contributed a double.

Arlington scored once in the second off Patterson when Joe Riplinger tripled and came home on Brett Frase's single. Then Arlington's guns were silent until the seventh when it was too late.

Quade's third inning triple off Patterson was wasted. Pinchhitter Mike Lapcewich opened Arlington Heights' seventh with a triple and came home when Quade reached base on shortstop Pagone's error. After Jerry Desimone walked, John Vukovich singled home Quade, ending Arlington Heights' scoring.

So that ended a tremendous comeback for Meyer's team which, when it faced total adversity, came back fighting hard all weekend until it just didn't have the energy for the final challenge of Patterson's excellent pitching.

There will be no Ninth District baseball today. The championship tournament begins on Tuesday when second place Arlington Heights (11-7) and third place Logan Square (7-9) start their best-of-three series.

Regardless of whether that lasts two or three games, Park Ridge doesn't begin its best-of-five championship series with the survivor until Friday, probably at Maine South.

And if the tournament develops anything like the past few days, especially regarding pitching, then it ought to be a real beauty.

Six Arlington Heights pitchers assembled the 37 scoreless innings during which opponents managed just 13 hits. Total innings pitched during the surge were Igrasek 10, Huber nine, Halas seven, Kastner five, Scott Green four and Schmidt two.

It was Schmidt who kept Arlington's Ninth District championship hopes alive Sunday afternoon with the 3-2 win over Wheeling. He pitched all seven innings, struck out five and yielded just four hits.

The scoreless innings streak began on Tuesday when Green yielded no runs and just two hits during the final four frames of a 5-1 victory over Wheeling.

On Thursday, Arlington's Huber and Wheeling's Mitch Gullet were deadlocked at 0-0 after eight innings. The game was scratched and rescheduled for Sunday. That was a two-bitter for Huber.

Halas (5-1) kept Arlington's Ninth District hopes moving forward when he gave Logan Square just four hits Friday evening in a complete game performance.

Kastner, Schmidt and Huber had a four-hit yield against Park Ridge in Saturday's first game. It was Kastner's sixth victory against one loss.

Then followed Igrasek's no-hitter. Moving to a 3-1 record, it was just his second decision in 22 games. And it was Igrasek's only Ninth District decision since Arlington's third league game.

Stein's grand slam gives Chisox sweep

Reserve infielder Bill Stein's first career grand slam home run powered the White Sox to a 10-5 doubleheader sweep over the Milwaukee Brewers on Sunday. Wilbur Wood tossed a four-hitter as Chicago took the opener in a 9-2 rout.

Stein's homer in the nightcap fourth came with Chicago trailing 4-2. Milwaukee chased Sox starter Claude Osteen in the first on four hits (including Hank Aaron's triple) plus one walk and one sacrifice fly.

Dan Osborn hurled six and two-third innings of three-hit relief to keep Chicago within striking distance and gain his second victory. Bill Gogolewski pitched the last two innings for his second save.

Singles by Deron Johnson, Bill Melton, Nyls Nyman and Stein produced two Chicago runs in the second, cutting Milwaukee's lead in half.

Stein's fourth inning grand slam was preceded by Ken Henderson's fourth inning grand slam was preceded by a pitch and Nyman's infield hit.

Melton, who had three second game hits and scored three runs, included his ninth homer among them.

The opener featured Wood's third straight victory, a four-hitter, which would have become his third consecutive shutout if Gorman Thomas hadn't homered with a man aboard in the second. Wood is 9-13.

Henderson slugged four hits in the opener. All were singles and he drove home three runs to support Wood. Chicago is now just one game below .500 at 45-46.

Hale's homer beats Cubs

Rookie John Hale smashed a two-run homer in the 12th inning off Tom Detmore as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Cubs, 5-3. Hale's third homer of the season came with two outs and followed Bill Buckner's infield single which evaded Cubs' second baseman Manny Trillo. Relief specialist Mike Marshall gained the win with his 10th straight appearance. Bill Madlock belted a two-run homer for Chicago, his fourth, and Jerry Morales added an RBI sacrifice fly.

Kingman belts 2 homers, 6 RBIs

Mount Prospect's Dave Kingman totalled six runs-batted-in, three hits and two home runs Sunday as his New York Mets prevailed in a 10-9 donnybrook with the Houston Astros. Kingman smashed a two-run homer in the eighth as New York overhauled Houston. He also had a three-run circuit blow in the fifth. Kingman's other hit was a single. He had an RBI with a first inning fielder's choice.

Wheeling's Vandello leads U.S.

Donald Vandello of Wheeling led the United States wheelchair basketball team to an 85-32 victory over Canada in the first game of the weeklong 24th International Stoke Mandeville (England) Games, the World Olympics for the disabled.

Vandello led all scorers with 22 points as the Ameila s uted Canada from the start, building a 45-12 halftime lead.

Boston Bruins' hockey player Dave Forbes may be tried again for aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon, says Hennepin County (Minn.) Attorney Gary Flakne, the first trial, regarding Forbes' Jan. 4 attack on Minnesota North Star Henry Boucha during an NHL game, ended in a 9-3 hung jury against Forbes. Flakne represents Boucha.

A. J. Foyt wrapped up his sixth U.S. Auto Club national driving title Sunday by winning the championship-car end of the Norton 200 at Michigan International Speedway. The victory was Foyt's 53rd in Indianapolis-type cars.

The Chicago Bears have signed wide receiver George Farmer who played out his option last year and turned free agent. All Bears' veterans are now under contract.

HERALD sportswriter Art Mugalian puts some oomph into the weight lifting segment of the First Annual Media Decathlon and Sports Person Day at the Marriott Lincolnshire Resort. Mugalian cruised through his first 100 pound lift but cracked when an extra 10 pounds was added to the weight. The agile Mugalian did better in the finesse events.

IT'S OFF the beaten track for Herald sportswriters Charlie Dickinson (front) and Mugalian. The tandem bicycle race threw a challenge at the pair they found unable to handle — negotiating a 120-degree turn.

Writers return to desks after day as 'athletes'

(Ed. Note: The Marriott Lincolnshire Resort held a special decathlon for members of the media last week, and sportswriters Charlie Dickinson and Art Mugalian represented the Herald. This is what happened when two writers left their desks and tried to be athletes.)

It was billed as the First Annual Sports Person Decathlon at the Marriott Lincolnshire Resort. And our staffers thought they were ready.

Charlie Dickinson and Art Mugalian went out to prove that they could out-jock the jocks. They wanted to show that sportswriters could "play" as well as write.

They failed on both counts. First, they failed miserably on the field of athletic endeavor. Oh, sure, Charlie demonstrated that the golf clubs weren't as warped in his hands as they looked. He shanked his first drive, but then proceeded to play two-and-a-half brilliant holes of golf. He launched a 200-yard drive straight down the middle and followed with a delicate 135-yard eight-iron to within 20 feet of the pin.

Then Charlie, shaking like a leaf, three-putted for his bogie.

"I could have had a birdie!" Charlie exclaimed. "Which way to the tour?"

For Art, it was a special agony. All day long he kept asking, "When are the running events? When is the running?" Art had been in training for several weeks. Five-mile-a-day type training. Now they were telling him there were no running events. Charlie and Art figured they had a MUGALIAN AND Dickinson showed early foot and sloppy technique (note paddles on same side of canoe) in the canoe racing portion of the decathlon and had the fastest time of 2:05 ranked at the top until the second entrant went into the water. Later, in the swimming event, Mugalian showed why he looks terrified in a canoe.

Hoffman tops Conant with rally

In one of the few summer league games that got in Friday (many were canceled by rain), Hoffman Estates spotted Conant a 5-0 lead and then won going away, 10-5.

The Cougars jumped on pitcher Paul South in the first inning. Earl Haus pitched the final four frames as the Hawks broke the contest wide open in the fifth with eight tallies. The 10-run rule ended the contest at that point.

Joe Parille hammered two homers, both solo shots. Al Bloom was the leading hitter for Hoffman with 3-for-3. Rick Lindow and Bill Armstrong each had two hits and three runs batted in. Also having two hits each were Tim Harkness and Wayne Jackson.

Jim Karras had two hits for Conant, including a double. He also was the losing pitcher.

Rick Kirsten fired a five hit shutout at the Elk Grove Grenadiers to give the Forest View Falcons a 3-0 summer league victory.

Tom Curan pitched six innings for the Grena to take the loss. He fanned four and walked four.

Kirsten started the two-run Falcon fourth inning with a walk. Base hits by Don Wiora, John Misceovich and Andy Konopka completed the inning.

Elk Grove's only extra base hit was a double by Bob Ray.

Wheeling journeyed downstate for two games in Peoria. Keith Pecka threw a one-hitter and Jim Passoli delivered an RBI single in Friday evening's 1-0 victory over Peoria Limestone.

John Miller doubled, tripled and was the winning pitcher in Saturday's 17-3 conquest of Peoria Central. Curt Rathje singled and doubled. Many walks contributed to the rout.

For the third time this summer, Prospect dropped a doubleheader, this time to Addison Trail 11-4 and 3-1. In the first game, Addison got seven runs on six hits in the third inning to clinch the victory.

Burt Thomas had a no-hitter and a 1-0 lead going into the sixth inning of the second game for the Knights, but ended up losing as Addison scored two in the sixth and one more in the seventh.

The Knights have played five doubleheaders in the summer league, winning one, splitting another, and losing three and they now own a 13-10 overall record.

High school summer league tourney begins

A Wrigley Field showdown for the championship of the Illinois High School Summer League will be the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow as the post season tournament gets under way today.

A field of 94 teams, many drawing first round byes, will be thinned out to four bracket winners over the course of the week.

The four survivors will clash on July 29 at Lewis University in the semi-finals and the two winners will hammer away at each other in the friendly confines of Wrigley Field Aug. 6, while the Cubs are in in Philadelphia.

Wheeling, Hersey and Rolling Meadows have drawn first round byes in the tournament. On Tuesday, July 22, Wheeling will host Crystal Lake, Barrington will travel to Hersey and Rolling Meadows will entertain Wauconda.

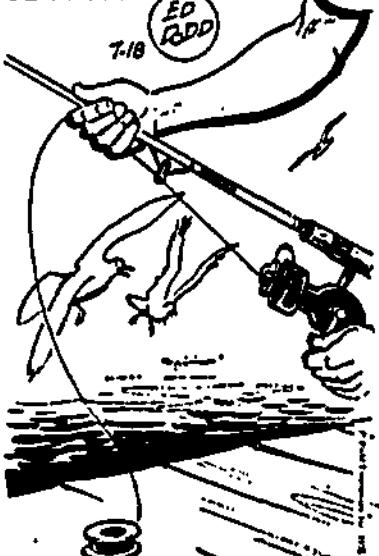

In first round games July 21 these are the pairings:

Schaumburg High School's golf coach had to make room for another piece of hardware last weekend after his showing over the testing Villago Greens links in Woodridge.

The 27-year-old math teacher birdied the last hole to capture the 71st Chicago Amateur golf championship Friday.

Although Jacobsen appeared out of the running Thursday, falling 10 strokes off the lead during one stretch over the par 72 layout. He finished with a 72 that round and fired a 73 (35-38) despite the pressure of the final day for a 72-hole score of 294.

Gary Pinns, only 17, ballooned to a final day's score of 76 to finish one stroke off the pace.

Jacobsen credited his par at the fourth hole while Jim Snyder took a seven. "That was a four-stroke swing," said Jacobsen. "That got me back into it."

He really got pumped up after pulling even with Pinns on the eighth hole by holing out from 100 yards out with a sand iron. That eagle on the 385-yard par 4 hole didn't keep him on top, however.

Jacobsen double bogeyed the 14th to lose two strokes to Pinns. Then the leader went three over on two of the next three holes leaving the two tied going to 18.

It was here that the veteran amateur two-putted from 25 feet for a birdie on the par 5 finishing hole. Pinns, who had putting troubles all day, missed from four feet for the tie.

"In the pros, you've got to make birdies to make things happen, to keep pace," said Jacobsen. "But in amateur golf, you must make pars and avoid breaking a leg."

Jacobsen more or less did just that until the last hole when he made like a pro with a super second shot that allowed him to two taps at a birdie.

Tied for seventh with 301 totals was Len Flocce of Palatine. Palatine High's golf coach was deadlocked with John Minkley.

chance to win the canoe race. Charlie had earned a merit badge in Boy Scout canoeing. He said he knew what he was doing. And Art had gone down with the Titanic.

Sitting out in the middle of the lake, Charlie intoned: "I guess I'm not as good at this as I thought."

There they were, up a creek without a paddle — just two useless oars. It was pretty much of a lost cause. Everything seemed to go wrong. Somehow they missed the home turn on the tandem bicycle course. They finished in a dead heat in the 120-yard walk. They played tennis with Mike Sommer, but she beat them.

But here's the worst: Charlie and Art were supposed to come back with a story. They were supposed to write something witty and clever which would grab the readers. Something interesting.

After all, that's their job. But, no, they failed. "I don't remember much about it," said Art. "As a matter of fact, I don't even remember being there."

Charlie stopped short of an outright denial. But he was of no help, either. "I don't feel like writing today," he said, making his way to the first tee.

Highest paid bullfighter

The highest paid bullfighter in history is El Cordobes (born Manolo Benitez Perez) who became a multi-millionaire in 1968, during which year he fought 111 corridos up to Oct. 4, receiving over $15,000 for each half-hour in the ring.

On May 19, 1968, he received $25,000 for a corrida in Madrid and in 1970 an estimated $1,800,000 for 121 fights.

Ordinance No. 1366

(An Ordinance Amending Title 15 of the Wheeling Municipal Code)

WHEREAS, the Illinois Municipal Code (Ill. Rev. Stat., Ch. 24, Sec. 11-13-14) authorizes the corporate authorities to amend the Zoning Ordinance, after notice and a public hearing, and WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Wheeling held a public hearing to consider amendments relative to the uses permitted in the I-3 Zoning classification contained in the zoning ordinance, after due notice by publication, pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Illinois Municipal Code, and WHEREAS, the Wheeling Zoning Board of Appeals has recommended, in writing, that the uses permitted in the I-3 Zoning classification be amended; and WHEREAS, the corporate authorities deem it to be in the best interests of the community to so amend the ordinance;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Wheeling, County of Cook and State of Illinois, as follows:

SECTION A.
That Section 15.09.030 of Chapter 15.09 of Title 15 of the Wheeling Municipal Code be and the same is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 15.09.030 Use regulations. The following uses shall be permitted:

(1) Any use permitted in Section 15.02.030 of this title;
(2) Ice plants;
(3) Public stables;
(4) Commercial radio and television transmitting or antenna towers and other electronic equipment requiring outdoor towers and including antenna towers for the dispatching of private messages;

(5) Other industrial and manufacturing uses meeting all requirements of this title and all applicable ordinances.

The following uses are declared to be special uses, permitted in the I-3 district (Industrial) zoning classification:

(a) Carrying, expressing, hauling or storing material yards;
(b) Coal and building material yards;
(c) Contractor's plants;
(d) Equipment rental services;

(e) Cab and bus storage and maintenance facilities provided that all bulk oil, gasoline and waste shall be stored in underground tanks and provided with fire protection, repair work and painting shall be performed in an enclosed building;

(f) Privately owned recreational facilities not open to the general public and associated operations.

The aforementioned special uses shall only be permitted after the requirements set forth in Chapter 15.03 of this code have been met.

SECTION B.
If Ordinances or parts of Ordinances thereof, in force at the time this Ordinance shall take effect, are inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter, the more restrictive provision shall govern.

SECTION C.
The invalidity of any section or provision of this ordinance hereby adopted, shall not invalidate other sections or provisions thereof.

SECTION D.
Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of these Sections shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not to exceed $500.00 or imprisoned not to exceed 60 days, or both, at the discretion of the Court.

U.S. space program comes of age

DOWNEY, Calif. (UPI) — And now the space shuttle.

Shuttle. The name itself is banal, but with it America's manned space program is departing the glory years. Reluctantly, for some painfully, it is coming of age.

The Shepards and Glenns, Neil Armstrong's giant step on the moon — they were the pioneer heroes as were the Wright brothers, Lindbergh and Amelia Earhart in another glamorous era.

You can sense the advent of the prosaic in the cavernous structures of Rockwell International where they are building sections of the shuttle craft whose powered flight in 1979 will be the nation's next manned effort after the Soviet-American linkup the middle of this month.

It is the same plant where they built the historic Apollo ships — the bell-shaped little modules that thrilled millions as they splashed down in the ocean and which one day will be as great a curiosity as the Wright's ungainly plane.

IN ONE SECTION of the Rockwell plant stands a mockup of the shuttle. The first reaction is surprise at how big it is. The second is how closely it resembles present giant airliners and cargo carriers.

Then comes the dawning that this is the first space workhorse. It will mean to the industry what the famous DC3 meant to aviation.

The unique feature of the shuttle is that it can be launched into orbit and then make a landing on earth, ready to go back into space in a two week turnaround period.

It can launch other spacecraft, eliminating the tricky and costly rocket shots from Cape Canaveral and Vandenberg.

It can retrieve any of the scores of unmanned satellites whirling around the globe, bring them back to earth for repair or reprogramming and then put them back on the job. It can make Cooperation in space an exception?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soyuz-Apollo mission demonstrated how the United States and Russia can cooperate on using space for peaceful purposes.

But it is the exception to the rule, according to the Center for Defense Information, a private organization which is critical of both American and Soviet military spending. The center has among its members some high ranking retired U.S. military men.

Contrary to the impression of peaceful cooperation created by the joint docking project, the Center says both the United States and the Soviets are increasingly emphasizing the military potential of manned space flight.

It charges the 1967 U.N. outer space treaty has not prevented either one of the superpowers from exploiting outer space for military purposes.

IN 1967 TREATY reserves outer space for the peaceful use of all nations, but it does not define what is peaceful. And military men have learned that space developments can be useful both for peace and for defense.

The Center reports that both the United States and Russia are devoting a majority of their satellite launchings to military purposes. Both are developing weapons for space warfare.

It estimates that Defense Department space programs will cost about $3.25 billion dollars this year. But even that figure is only an educated guess. Much space spending is disguised.

The Pentagon, for example, lists its space spending at only $2.25 billion. But in the Air Force budget is a $670 million request headed "miscellaneous." When Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., insisted on knowing what the miscellaneous item was, he first was told it was a secret CIA item. Later, the Pentagon acknowledged it was for secret space programs.

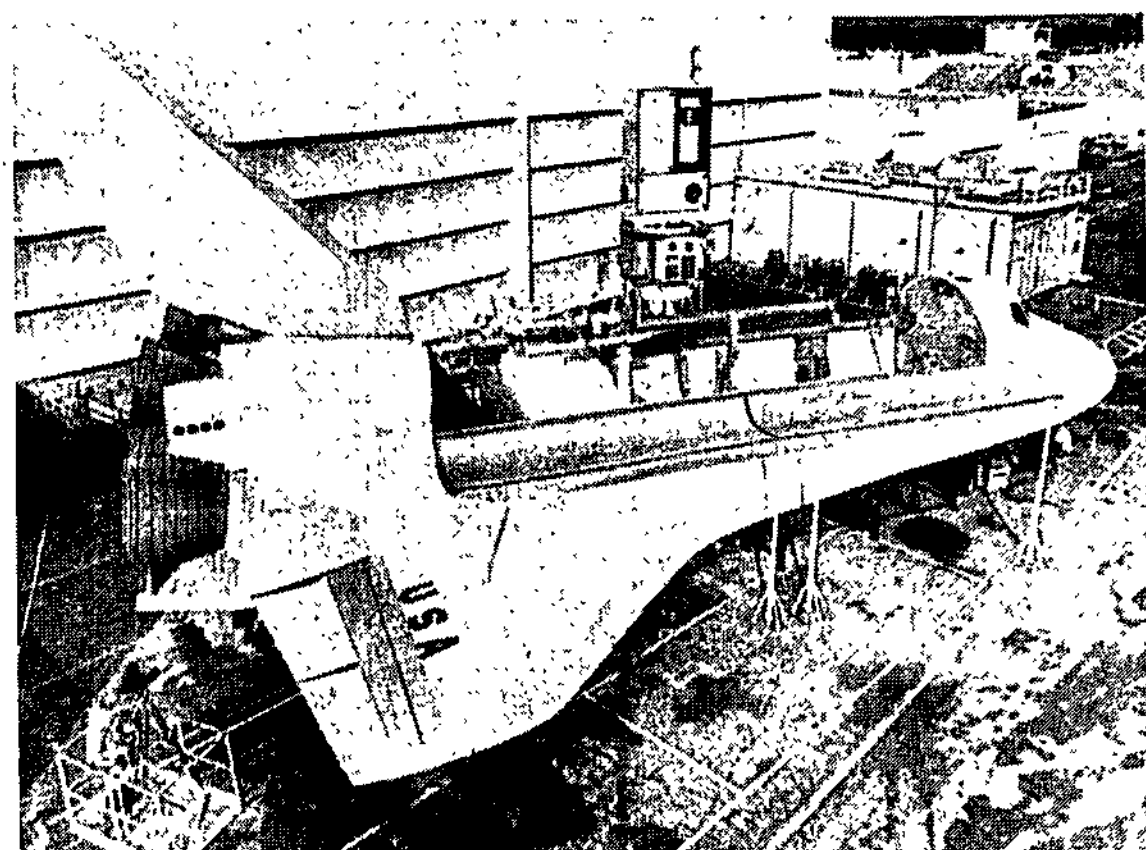

THE SOVIET MILITARY space program is considered to be very much like America's, and growing. But the center says all indications point to its being technologically inferior.

Soviet military space launchings are now three and four times as frequent as America's.

The Center believes, on the basis of information obtained from the Soyuz-Apollo mission, that the Soviets are 10 to 15 years behind the United States in manned space technology.

The Center has come to these conclusions:

- That outer space is being militarized to a degree unforeseen a few years ago.
- That contrary to the spirit of the outer space treaty, space technology and systems are being developed that have the potential for new super power confrontations.
- That there is serious danger space developments will be seen as evidence nuclear wars can be fought and won.

repairs and transfer experiments in space.

And, finally, it can take passengers to and from orbiting vehicles.

It is, in fact, the prototype of the sky bus that will one day take ordinary people, not just astronauts, engineers and scientists, into the weightless realm outside the earth's atmosphere. In its "payload" compartment is room for 200 people.

THE TIMETABLE calls for the first finished shuttle to be rolled out of the U.S. Air Force facility at Palmdale, Calif., in September of next year.

Under the $5.1 billion appropriated by Congress to NASA, Rockwell has the big bite but literally hundreds of subcontractors and suppliers are engaged in the program, expected to employ 36,000 at its peak.

Rockwell is building the after thrust structure, the crew compartment and the forward fuselage. Its Rocketdyne division is responsible for the three main engines.

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

by STIRLING MORITA
and

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs:

Hoffman Estates — 1-14 bold—
About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 426 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads — most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

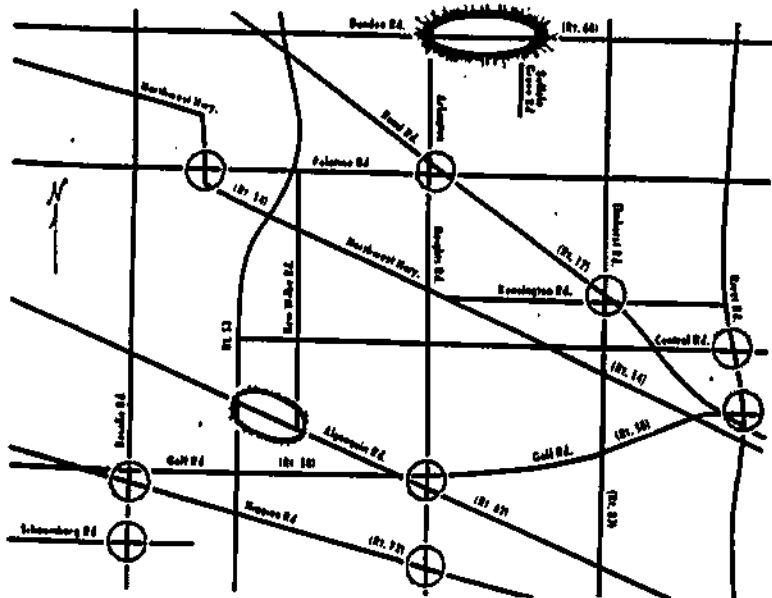

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents — downtown, the Rand-Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 852 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Sigwalt-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

Town Center's 2nd phase to be revealed tonight

The second phase of a feasibility study on the Buffalo Grove town center will be revealed tonight to the board of trustees.

William L. Haralson of Economics Research Associates, the firm hired by the village to do the study, will present three or four alternative concepts of what might be included in the town center.

Planning officials are considering an 80-acre parcel north of Lake Cook Road and between Buffalo Grove Road and Ill. Rte. 83 for the center that will include municipal, recreational, entertainment and cultural facilities.

Haralson had previously said the town center will be tailored to the needs of the community.

Trustees also will hear the results and the comments made in a village survey on the town center.

MORE THAN 800 families responded to the survey which was sent with the last village newsletter.

The residents were asked for their preferences on what the town center might include and what type architectural style it should be built.

Also on the village board agenda is an ordinance to appropriate funds for the current fiscal year. The ordinance calls for $5.1 million in funds to be appropriated for municipal operations.

A request for $140,000 in tax anticipation warrants will be requested by Village Finance Director Richard Glueckert.

In a report to Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson, Glueckert said that a cash flow analysis predicts a $30,000 deficit in August, with no "tax relief" until late September.

The village needs to sell tax anticipation warrants to maintain municipal operations, Glueckert said. The bonds will be paid off when the village receives the tax monies.

Also on the agenda, board members will examine annual performance reports of last year's municipal activities.

Buffalo Grove crime on the rise

Major crimes in Buffalo Grove, keyed by a sharp increase in theft, rose 15.5 per cent for the first six months of the year, recently-released police statistics show.

Figures indicate police handled a total of 365 major offenses, including robberies, burglaries, assault and theft so far this year. The 1974 total for five months was 316.

Thefts jumped 19.2 per cent from 198 to 236 while burglaries also showed an increase, 6.3 per cent from 63 to 67.

AUTO THEFTS rose 30 per cent from 10 in 1974 to 13 in 1975 while assaults remained about even, 45 in 1975 and 44 reported last year at this time.

There have been two armed robberies in the village this year and one reported rape. None had been recorded in 1974 statistics.

The reports also show village police handled 8.7 per cent more calls and complaints this year, 4,578, than (Continued on Page 5)

Mediator hopeful postal strike can be averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W. J. Usery of the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service early Sunday evening said some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

TV coverage of spacemen

Here's the timetable of events today for the Apollo-Soyuz international spaceflight.

5:50 a.m. — Soyuz touchdown near the town of Arkalyk in Siberia, 1,250 miles southeast of Moscow.

6:05 a.m. — Astronauts awaken.

6:50 a.m. — Apollo crew eats breakfast.

8:44 a.m. — Apollo crew conducts x-ray astronomy experiment for 37 minutes. It is the first such experiment period Monday.

1:45 p.m. — Astronauts eat lunch.

2:54 p.m. — Apollo astronauts use a helium detector to study interstellar space.

9:30 p.m. — Apollo crew eats dinner.

Motorist, 39, arrested after traffic dispute

A Buffalo Grove man was arrested Friday for allegedly threatening a man with a tire iron during a traffic dispute in Schaumburg, police said.

James W. Donovan, 39, of 300 Buffalo Grove Rd., was charged with assault and criminal damage to property. He was discovered to be wanted by Chicago police for numerous parking violations. The bond for the parking violations had been set at $3,000.

Police were told Donovan waved a tire iron at Donald Bush of Hoffman Estates during the dispute at Higgins Road near Ill. Rte. 53 Friday afternoon. Bush drove away, but Donovan struck the car with the iron, police said. Donovan was later arrested at his home by Buffalo Grove police.

Donovan was released after posting $1,000 bond on the Schaumburg charges and $3,000 for the Chicago violations. He is scheduled to appear Aug. 22 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Wheeling, River Trails park units seek to annex same choice area

by TOM VON MALDER

A potential battle looms between the Wheeling and River Trails park districts over the annexation of an unincorporated area in Wheeling Township that lies between the two districts.

River Trails Park District officials have estimated the area, which contains mostly apartments and one shopping center, could bring in an added $125,000 tax receipts to its district. The area lies south of Palatine Road, east of Wolf Road, north of Willow Road/Seminole Lane and west of Milwaukee Avenue and River Road.

The Wheeling Park Board Thursday night unanimously voted to proceed with annexation of the area, instructing the park staff to meet with the district's attorney to set up a timetable and format for a referendum. As the district is initiating the annexation attempt, a coincidental referendum would have to be held among residents already in the district to obtain their approval of the annexation.

JUST HOURS AFTER the Wheeling Park District vote, the River Trails Park Board gave its staff the go ahead to prepare the procedures for annexation of the same area. The River Trails commissioners have been discussing the annexation of the area for several months.

"They're interested in the money (tax receipts) and we are interested in the money is what it comes down to," said Marvin Weiss, director of the River Trails Park District, when he learned of the Wheeling Park Board's action. He added that Wheeling Park Director David Phillips contacted him after a newspaper article appeared on the River Trails District's possible annexation of the area and both directors went out and looked at the area.

"It's the final completion of the shopping center that has brought all this to a head," said River Trails Comr. George R. Meier. The shopping center is the Willow-Park Shopping Plaza at the southwest corner of Milwaukee Avenue and Palatine Road.

Weiss, agreeing with Meier, said, "I kind of look on the area as the salvation to the potential financing crisis we are facing." The district is faced with smaller tax receipts because of a lowering of the district's land-values for tax purposes.

RESIDENTS OF THE area stand to gain a new park no matter which of the two park districts are successful in annexing the area.

Phillips said his board discussed a possible 5-to-10-acre community park for the area. The River Trails Board said it would study the area to determine what size park might be needed and what facilities should be included at the park.

Some members of the River Trails Park Board said they felt a joint referendum — giving residents of the area a chance to choose which park district they wanted to join — might be a good idea. Phillips said his board did not discuss such a possibility, although he added that it would not be immediately ruled out.

It is estimated that some 5,000 persons live in the area, which includes such apartment complexes as Gladstone Glen, Lake Run, Quince Park, Orchard and Birchwood Traces, Loch Lomond and Willow-River. There are no parks in the area, although there is a play area at Stevenson School, in the northwest section of the proposed annexation area. The school itself already is in the Wheeling Park District.

Commuters lose spots to bettors

Commuters who regularly use the Arlington Park train station are running into problems from race track patrons.

Racing fans are parking haphazardly in the commuter lot in order to skirt the $1 race track parking fee and the crowded lots near the grandstand.

In many cases, the race track cars are arriving after the daily 50-cent commuter parking fee has been collected, area residents report, and the track patrons wind up parking for free.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Police Capt. Jack Aldrich says the village has no jurisdiction over parking in the race track's commuter lot and is powerless to ticket or tow improperly parked cars. Police officers have talked to track officials about the problem, he said.

"We have no police authority whatsoever, but I think they're getting tired of listening to us," Aldrich said. At Arlington Park, a spokesman admitted Friday that a problem does exist.

"I just talked to the police about it today," he said. "We're on to the problem and something is going to have to be done about it."

An attendant may have to be assigned to police the lot, he said.

There is parking for 800 cars in Arlington Park's commuter lot. The station opened in September 1973 and use of the train station quickly increased.

Residents say the improperly parked cars are a nuisance and a hazard during the evening rush hour when many cars are leaving the parking lot and other cars are pulling in to pick up riders.

Bjorvik 'man in middle?'

Atty. Roger A. Bjorvik could become a man in the middle if a fight does break out between the River Trails and Wheeling park districts over annexation of property north of Seminole-Willow Lane in Wheeling Township.

Both park boards have begun action to annex the area which contains some 5,000 apartment dwellers and a new shopping center. Bjorvik is the attorney for both park districts.

"I have to sit down and talk with them," Bjorvik said Friday of the brewing complication in his position. He would not comment on what he feels might happen but said if a fight did develop and the park districts found themselves on opposite sides in court, he was "sure" something would be done so he would not represent both districts in the court battle.

Crime in Buffalo Grove up 15% over last year

they did last year when there were 4,195.

There were also increases reported in several categories of minor criminal activity including:

- Vandalism which rose 11.3 per cent. A total of 246 such offenses have occurred in 1975 with 221 on record at this time last year.

- Drunk-driving was up from 22 to 32 incidents, a 45.5 per cent increase. In addition, liquor law violations, drunkenness and disorderly conduct rose 18.7 per cent from 63 to 76 reported cases.

- Juvenile crime increased at a rate of 7.3 per cent, from 329 to 353, the figures show. Narcotics offenses increased by two incidents, 20 to 22 through the first five months. Sex offenses rose 15 to 21, or 40 per cent.

DECREASES WERE noted however in arsons, down from five to one and in weapons violations which dropped 43.5 per cent from 39 to 22 cases. The number of forgery and counterfeiting cases remained the same at 17 for both reporting periods.

Traffic law violations have been 33.9 per cent higher this year than at this time in 1974, the report showing 230 such violations as compared with 171.

A 13 per cent increase was reflected in traffic accidents. Village police report 233 this year while only 206 had occurred in a comparable 1974 period.

Police have answered 410 service calls this year, 25.7 less than the 552 reported in five months in 1974.

postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer. Dorrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

"SOME MAJOR decisions have to be made, if they can be made," Usery said. "I'm still hopeful."

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

Rademacher said, "There's a complete understanding that nobody's going to go out tomorrow. Whatever job action we take has got to be national, well-organized."

"We would want to be fair to the public because we would not want to be striking against the public," Rademacher said. He disclosed the union's first wage position called for an increase of about 24 per cent during a two-year period, which he said would mean comparability with the employees of the private United Parcel Service. He said USP workers make $1.36 an hour more than postal worker on the same jobs.

Girl, 4, hurt in crash fatal to 3

Three persons were killed, and two others, including a Des Plaines youngster, critically injured Saturday night in a two-car accident at Ill. Rte. 72 and Randall Road near Elgin.

Tara Kopecky, 4, of Des Plaines, was listed in critical condition in the intensive-care unit of St. Joseph's Hospital. She was a passenger in a car driven by Antony Mandala, 22, of Norridge. State Police said the Mandala car ran a stop sign and crashed into a car driven by Michael McKay, 26, of Hampshire. McKay and his 2-year-old daughter, Jennifer, were killed along with a passenger in the Mandala vehicle, Renee Rabiola, 23, of Norridge. McKay's wife, Susan, 20, was reported in critical condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mandala and one of his passengers, Janice Kopecky, 22, of Des Plaines, were released after treatment at the Elgin hospital.

Mandala was charged with failure to obey a stop sign.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION on Roselle Road near Euclid Avenue caused 100 feet of a Palatine water main serving Harper College to collapse. The problem occurred when Milburn Bros. Inc., general contractors for the Cook County $2.5 million Euclid Avenue project, encountered bad soil. Approximately 30 feet of peat had to be excavated. The water main had been turned off in anticipation of the problem. Robert Miller, Palatine director of public works and engineering, said Harper College has an alternate source of water and there was no problem. The water main is on Cook County right-of-way. Under an agreement with the county it is the village's responsibility to repair the water main. No estimates on the cost of the repair are available.

Centel strikers feel economic pinch overtime clause be inserted in the union contract.

The company has asked for the overtime clause because many employees, apparently bitter over the company's decision last spring to lay off 40 employees and reclassify 40 others into lower-paying jobs, have refused to work overtime during emergencies and peak periods.

"Several months ago they laid off 40 people and now they want mandatory overtime," said an installer-repairman who asked to remain nameless. "That's kind of stupid."

Hodges said he believes the company is hoping employees ranks will thin further as a result of the strike.

"I think they're just trying to get rid of some more people," he said. "They know that if this strike lasts for any length of time, that a lot of employees will get fed up and leave."

ANOTHER UNIDENTIFIED striker said he believes the company will hold out for a long time before a settlement is reached because the company is in the midst of a slow period.

"By having a strike the company is saving a lot of money," he said. "They're paying 350 management people to do what 900 people were doing before the strike."

Since the strike began there have been seven telephone cables cut, several reports of picketers blocking company driveways, several bomb threats at company buildings and two accidents involving striking employees and company vehicles.

Most of the employees interviewed said they hope the strike is settled before it becomes more bitter, but several said some irreversible damage already has been done.

"Let's face it, it can't be avoided," Schleicher said. "If you're blocking driveways and calling your supervisor a scab while you're on strike he's going to remember that when you go back to work."

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

by STIRLING MORITA
and

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs: Hoffman Estates — 1-14 bold—

About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 426 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads — most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

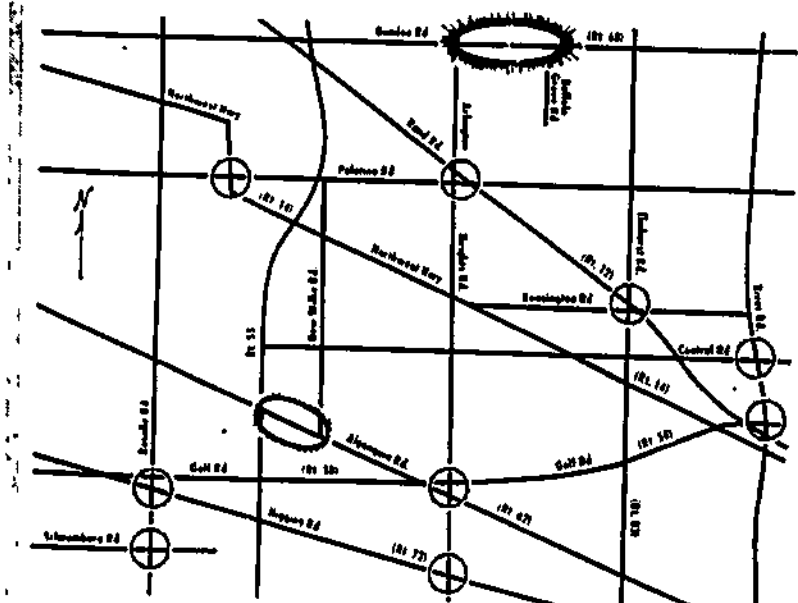

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents — downtown, the Rand-Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 852 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Sigwalt-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

WHAT ARE the most hazardous intersections in the area? Circles pinpoint some of the spots police say are hazardous.

THE WINNER. Her name is Gail Kostyniak and she was declared the winner Friday as decorator of the "Best Bicentennial Bicycle" at Ridge School in Elk Grove Village. Gail's bike took about six miles of crepe paper before she got it just right.

Mikva supports campaign-financing act

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, has thrown his support behind legislation that would broaden the federal matching-funds / campaign-financing system to congressional races.

Mikva is a co-sponsor of the Congressional Campaign Financing Act which is being considered by both the U.S. House and Senate. U.S. Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., is sponsoring the bill in the Senate.

The new law would extend the financing system now used for presidential candidates to include congressional elections.

THE MOVE comes at a time when published reports indicate that there will not be enough money in the public tax campaign fund to support the various presidential candidates.

Mikva had been involved in two of the most costly political campaigns in the past four years. Campaign records indicate that the spending in the 1972 and 1974 campaigns between Mikva and Republican Samuel H. Young was among the highest in the country.

The congressman has consistently called for some form of public financing of elections. Mikva says public financing would eliminate the risk of special-interest groups exercising undue influence and narrow the gap between the advantage normally held by an incumbent candidate and the challenger.

An aide to Mikva said the congressman favors the bill despite the predictions that the public campaign coffers will not hold enough funds to support even the presidential candidates.

THE AIDE indicated Mikva believes there is a need for intensive public education. The campaign fund is financed through the 1% tax check-off on the federal income tax form.

'Clean up school site': Winston Grove residents

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Residents of the Winston Grove subdivision in Elk Grove Village say they are tired of waiting for the school district, developer, and park district to decide who is responsible for what they call "a crummy piece of land" near Stevenson School.

Neighbors say the 5-acre site behind Volkamer Trail is overgrown with weeds, serves as a dumping ground, and is hazardous to children because of swampy conditions.

The undeveloped land is part of an 8.5-acre site donated to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 in 1973 by the developer, Centex Homes Corp. After the school district completed construction of the Stevenson elementary school, it offered to turn over the remaining land to the Elk Grove Park District.

The park district wants the area cleaned up before it takes possession — a job that requires regrading and draining the property. Park officials said it could cost at least $40,000 to fill in and grade the sloping site that is bordered on one side by a drainage ditch.

"I don't care who cleans it up — something needs to be done," said Carole Wiecek, 1370 Volkamer Tr. "As soon as a first-grader drowns out there, they'll do something. I'd just like to see how they're going to keep children out of there when school starts in the fall."

SUE MOHR, 1405 Holdmair, said she tries to keep her two children out of the area, but admits "it isn't much use." Those cattails are almost 12 feet high back there. I could get lost walking around," she said. "when my daughter starts school I don't know how I'll keep her away from that mess."

Marvin J. Lopicola, Dist. 54 assistant superintendent of finances, said the district accepted the property from Centex with the understanding that Centex would fill in the low areas. Their refusal to do so, he said, is a case of the developer "shirking his responsibility."

"We haven't gotten any cooperation from Centex at all," Lopicola said. "I've written letters to them with no response whatsoever. I'm just saying that it's a case of shared responsibility and Centex hasn't cooperated."

CLAUDE KOENIG, project manager for Centex, said the company has done "considerable grading there already," but he said he was not aware of any agreement between Centex and Dist. 54.

"No one has approached me about doing any additional grading in there," he said. Koenig said Centex was not "directly responsible" for the property, but did not elaborate.

PARKS. SUPT. Jack Claes said the land was not subject to village requirements for land donations because the property was donated directly to the school district. Village requirements state the land must be rough-graded to be acceptable.

Complaints about overgrown weeds, mosquitos, and standing water in the property are "entirely justified," Lopicola said but he added that until the land is improved "there's not a whole lot we can do."

"We can't go in there with heavy equipment and sink up to here in mud," he said. "The weeds will be cut next week as far as we can get in, but until the land is improved and filled in, we can't do much."

Lopicola said he hoped the area would be cleaned up by the first snowfall. "There's no way to gear the process for Sept. 1," he said, "but with cooperation from Centex we can get started, at least."

Meanwhile, residents say they are getting fed up with the delay. "Nothing has been done back there," said John Jarvis, 1427 James Way. "I can see all their points, but somebody's got to do it. It's a real mess."

a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said, "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer. Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Future of school-park site topic of Tuesday meeting

The future of the undeveloped Stevenson School park site will be discussed Tuesday in a meeting between officials of the Elk Grove Park District, Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Centex Homes Corp.

The three groups disagree about who is responsible for correcting major drainage problems on the site in order to make the land usable for a park.

The site, on Volkamer Trace, west of Ill. Rte. 53, includes between four and five acres of marshy land and is part of an 8.5-acre school site donated to Dist. 54 by Centex about two years ago.

Stevenson School is under construction there and scheduled to open this fall. The park, however, remains undeveloped.

Dist. 54 has offered to donate the site to the park district, but park officials are reluctant to bear the entire burden of grading and filling the site.

Estimates have put the cost of the work at $40,000 or more.

Parks Supt. Jack Claes has said no park funds are presently available for the project because it was not included in the 1973 referendum.

The purpose of Tuesday's meeting, Claes said, is to discuss what, if anything, can be done with the site and who will do it. The meeting originally was scheduled for last week, but postponed by Centex representatives.

Cosman Lake seeking more security

Cosman Lake area residents will meet Tuesday to discuss police protection in their development with the Elk Grove Village Board's judiciary, planning and zoning committee.

John Woods of the Elk Grove Estates Homeowners Assn., said representatives of his group and five other smaller associations plan to attend the session at 7 p.m. prior to the regular village board meeting.

Woods said the homeowners want to know if regular police patrols of the area can be stepped up or other means taken by the village to reduce vandalism and trespassing in their predominantly multi-family development.

THE HOMEOWNERS employ off-duty local police to monitor the lake area some nights, Woods said, but the "moonlighting" patrolmen can only enforce the private rules of the association. They have no regular police powers to deal with persons who violate village ordinances and must swear out complaints against offenders.

Woods said the residents want clarification on which ordinances apply to the common property areas of the development and are asking that village police enforce the ordinances.

OUR POLICE protection has always been good, but we don't have enough information on what's available to us from the village and what isn't as far as ordinances," Woods said. "This will sort of be a meeting of the minds to determine what the village can provide."

Frequent incidents of trespassing and vandalism in the Cosman Lake area first prompted the homeowners to seek help from the village several months ago. Woods said boats and docks belonging to residents as well as picnic equipment has been damaged by trespassers. Several persons also have been caught swimming in the lake, he said.

The local scene

Five earn college degrees

Elk Grove Village students graduating at recent commencement exercises include: Robert E. Schwartz graduated summa cum laude with a degree in science biology from Michigan State University . . . William Toovey received a bachelor of music education from Illinois Wesleyan University. Illinois Benedictine College awarded a bachelor of arts degree in physical education to Patricia O'Shaughnessy . . . Catherine J. Cornell received a bachelor of science degree from Southern Illinois University . . . Carol Juegwith graduated with honors from the University of Wisconsin.

IT'S A REAL MESS is the way local residents near Stevenson School in Elk Grove Village describe both the field behind their homes and the attitude by the developer and local government toward the cleanup project.

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

by STIRLING MORITA and JOHN MAES

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs: Hoffman Estates — 1-14 bold—

About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 428 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads — most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents — downtown, the R and Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 852 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Sigwalt-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

Hoffman Estates may go for tax-hike vote in fall

Hoffman Estates officials are taking a close look to see if they are going to ask residents for a tax hike this fall.

Officials are beginning to gather information about the fiscal plight of the village and the end result may be village government coming to its residents asking for more money.

Information on major expenditures for the next three to five years is being collected from department heads to decide if a referendum will be needed and if so, how large a package will be proposed, Assistant Village Mgr. John F. Dixon said.

OFFICIALS ARE considering the referendum to pay for long-term sidewalk and street repairs and possible major equipment purchases or expenditures which will have to be made in the immediate future.

A referendum for the sale of up to $2 million in general-obligation bonds could be offered in November, officials have said. General-obligation bonds are repaid with tax money.

Dixon said department heads are expected to submit reports by the end of the month on expenditures which may be needed in the next five years. The street-and-sidewalk repair program also will be included in the planning.

The referendum planning will include determining how large a debt the village will be willing to carry in its budget, Dixon said. Home-rule communities like Hoffman Estates can carry an unlimited bonded indebtedness, he said, but added too large a debt would not be sound fiscal policy.

"WE KNOW WE have no limit, but looking realistically we have to determine how many programs we need that would fall into a reasonable debt," he said.

Dixon said a $1.5-million bond package likely would cover the cost of street and sidewalk repairs for the future. A larger package could provide a capital-improvement fund from which monies for future maintenance work or purchases could be drawn, officials have said.

Mediator hopeful postal strike can be averted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W. J. Usery of the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service early Sunday evening said some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said, "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer.

Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

"SOME MAJOR decisions have to be made, if they can be made," Usery said. "I'm still hopeful."

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

Rademacher said, "There's a complete understanding that nobody's going to go out tomorrow. Whatever job action we take has got to be national, well-organized."

Village officials have said residents are likely to face a property tax increase next year even if the referendum is not sought. Rising costs of services are being blamed for the tax increase which is expected to be sought.

The increase would be the first in five years. Currently the village tax rate is 77 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, or $77 on a house assessed at $10,000.

The village's tax levy ordinance must be adopted by Sept. 30, but Finance Director Keith Wendland said Friday preparation of the levy ordinance has not yet started because of county delays in releasing information on municipal assessed valuation.

2 cycle riders fail in holdup try

A Purolator Security agent told Schaumburg police Sunday morning that two men on a motorcycle tried to stop his car at gunpoint near Meacham and Wiley roads.

The agent was driving south on Meacham Road at about 12:40 a.m. when a motorcycle pulled alongside and one of the men brandished a revolver, police were told.

The man then ordered the agent to pull off the road. The agent stopped his vehicle and ran to a nearby building, pounding on the door, and the pair drove off on the motorcycle, police reported.

Finish airport study, state urges

Completion of Schaumburg's $50,000 airport feasibility study has been recommended by the State of Illinois, although the Federal Aviation Administration is not expected to finish its examination of a consultants report for at least 30 days.

"The position of the state is that we would like to see the study concluded," Guy Wood, state director of Aeronautics, said Friday. Wood said the state has endorsed partial funding of the second half of the study, expected to cost about $20,000.

Two-thirds of the cost of the study is being paid by an FAA planning grant, with the state and the village each covering one-sixth of the remainder.

Because of the state and federal funding, the village cannot proceed with the state and the village each covering one-sixth of the remainder.

IN A RECENT report, consultants Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff advised village purchase and improvement of the now privately owned Schaumburg Airport is economically feasible, provided the total cost of the project does not exceed $8.4 million, and state and federal assistance is available. The project must also be found environmentally acceptable, consultants say.

When the study was planned, it was divided into an examination of the economic feasibility and an environmental investigation. Village officials reasoned if the economic forecast was negative they would not continue with the environmental impact statement and public hearings as required by the FAA.

FAA spokesman Louis Yates said the consultants report is being studied by his staff, though the agency does not expect to complete its examination for about 30 days. "We will make no recommendation, though, until we receive comment on the study from the village," Yates said.

Yates said the FAA is concerned about the remaining "usable amount" of airspace close to O'Hare Airport, although the agency is aware of the need for a general aviation airport in the Schaumburg area.

"We are looking at the study as optimistically as we can, but we don't want to lead the village into something that could result in an impossible situation," he said.

WOOD CONTENTS airspace will not be a problem if Schaumburg airport is improved. "The airport has just about reached its maximum, what we are talking about is public ownership to keep the field viable," he said.

The village board will be asked Tuesday to concur in a recommendation to proceed with the study made this week by the Schaumburg transportation committee. Immediate board action is not expected, however.

"Out of fairness to all concerned, and with what is apparently a positive response from the consultants, I don't think it would be wise to stop half way through the project," Village Pres. Raymond Kessel said, pointing out that the ultimate decision rests with the village board.

Trustees Edward G. Olsen, James Rogers and Alan Larson said Friday the transportation committee recommendation would weigh heavily in their consideration of the project.

Judo teacher tells ethical side of a physical sport

by LINDA PUNCH
You don't mess around with Wally Barber's students.

Barber, judo instructor in the Schaumburg Park District summer program, is a fourth-degree Judo Black Belt. He numbers nine black belts among his students.

A resident of Schaumburg since 1961, Barber began his judo career 18 years ago.

"I was a high school and college Pan-Am wrestler and I didn't think much of judo until I got on a mat and tried it with a Japanese fellow. He showed me I wasn't as good as I thought," he said.

SINCE THAT time, Barber has competed in six U.S. National Judo competitions, placing third in the nation in the masters belt division at the 1974 U.S. National Tournament. He said it takes "dedication and devotion to the art if you want to be skillful."

"People take judo for a variety of reasons — physical fitness, endurance or to learn a skill. Some want to learn it for self defense, others because they don't know what it is, he said.

Many people drop out of training "because it is hard work — if you enjoy it, you're willing to put in work and sweat."

Barber's park district classes are held Wednesday nights in the gym of Addams Junior High School. He teaches a beginners class for children as well as advanced and beginners classes for adults.

The sessions begin with a series of warmup exercises that prepare students for the various throws and falls.

"ONE OF THE most important things is teaching people how to fall properly so when they're thrown the shock is spread over a large area," Barber said.

While most people think of judo as a physical sport, Barber also tries to instill a sense of ethics into his students.

"There is a moral code involved in teaching and practicing judo. I try to turn out people who are skillful and competent but who are also good citizens," he said.

Barber, a teacher in High School Dist. 214, coached a judo team at Hershey High School, Arlington Heights. The team had 16 high school brown belts who competed in national competition.

Barber plans to expand his judo course at the park district to include beginning and advanced judo for children ages 10-14 years and beginning and advanced adult judo, jujitsu and Japanese style karate. Classes begin Tuesday Sept. 30 for a 10-week session.

WALLY BARBER, fourth degree judo black belt, his martial arts career 18 years ago, is a mild-mannered high school teacher during normal working hours.

Road widening needed—financing too

Special methods of financing must be provided to widen Plum Grove Road to four lanes between Golf and Algonquin roads, said Robert Brawley, facilities director of Motorola Communications Division, Schaumburg.

The work would include a bridge over the Northwest Tollway.

Brawley said state and county officials acknowledged the need for another north-south thoroughfare in the Schaumburg area at a conference last week with village officials and local business representatives.

The meeting, Brawley said, was called to "update the state and county of the impact on local roads today and give both agencies an idea of growth anticipated over the next 10 years."

HE EXPLAINED that eight office buildings planned in a one-mile radius of the Golf-Monahan intersection are expected to increase "the business population" from 10,000 persons to 20,000 by 1977.

"And this is not taking into consideration major expansion planned by Motorola and other businesses in the area," Brawley added.

"Basically, as far as Plum Grove Road is concerned, there's a problem of money and jurisdiction," said Brawley, explaining that the road lies within the corporate limits of Schaumburg. The project, estimated at about $4 million "in today's dollars," cannot qualify for either state or county funding.

Plum Grove runs north from Nerge Road, dead-ending at Golf Road. Brawley said right-of-way exists at the west end of the Motorola property for completion of the road on the north side of the tollway.

Brawley said he will "personally" contact local legislators in an effort to "explore alternate methods" of financing road construction and also will discuss the possibility of a special assessment program with Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessel.

Motorist, 39, arrested after traffic dispute

A Buffalo Grove man was arrested Friday for allegedly threatening a man with a tire iron during a traffic dispute in Schaumburg, police said.

James W. Donovan, 39, of 308 Buffalo Grove Rd., was charged with assault and criminal damage to property. He was discovered to be wanted by Chicago police for numerous parking violations. The bond for the parking violations had been set at $3,000.

Police were told Donovan waved a tire iron at Donald Bush of Hoffman Estates during the dispute at Higgins Road near Ill. Rte. 53 Friday afternoon. Bush drove away, but Donovan struck the car with the iron, police said. Donovan was later arrested at his home by Buffalo Grove police.

Donovan was released after posting $1,000 bond on the Schaumburg charges and $3,000 for the Chicago violations. He is scheduled to appear Aug. 22 in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Manager foils Jo Jo's holdup

An armed robbery at Jo Jo's Restaurant in Schaumburg was foiled Saturday morning when the restaurant's manager left with the patrons.

The manager, Alex Tubekis, reported he went to the rear door of the restaurant about 10:20 a.m. to check on a delivery when he was approached by a man holding an automatic pistol.

The gunman ordered Tubekis to open the safe, and the manager walked to the front of the restaurant, going table to table and telling customers to leave, police said. The manager left with the patrons and called police from a nearby restaurant.

Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates police surrounded the building, but could not find the intruder.

Soda-pop thieves take vending unit

Thieves made off with a soda-pop machine from outside the maintenance building at Hilldale Villages, Hoffman Estates, police said Friday.

The value of the machine was not immediately known, but police said there were 150 bottles of pop inside the 5-foot tall machine. It was taken from the building at 1750 Manchester Blvd. sometime between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. Friday.

Hoffman Estates girl rape victim

Police are searching for a man who raped a 17-year-old Hoffman Estates girl at gunpoint in her home Thursday.

Hoffman Estates police said the intruder, wielding an automatic pistol, entered the home in the vicinity of Higgins Road and Grand Canyon Parkway and assaulted the girl.

The man drove away in a 1966 light-blue Chevrolet after the assault. The man was described as white, in his late 30s, 6 feet tall and weighing about 175 pounds. He was wearing a white tee-shirt and blue jeans and had a three-day growth of beard, the victim told police.

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

by STIRLING MORITA and JOHN MAES

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs: Hoffman Estates — 1-14 bold—

About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 428 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads — most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents — downtown, the Rand-Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 952 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Sigwalt-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

Commuters losing parking spots

Commuters who regularly use the Arlington Park train station are running into problems from race track patrons.

Racing fans are parking haphazardly in the commuter lot in order to skirt the $1 race track parking fee and the crowded lots near the grandstand.

In many cases, the race track cars are arriving after the daily 50-cent commuter parking fee has been collected, area residents report, and the track patrons wind up parking for free.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Police Capt. Jack Aldrich says the village has no jurisdiction over parking in the race track's commuter lot and is powerless to ticket or tow improperly parked cars. Police officers have talked to track officials about the problem, he said.

"We have no police authority whatsoever, but I think they're getting tired of listening to us," Aldrich said. At Arlington Park, a spokesman admitted Friday that a problem does exist.

"I just talked to the police about it today," he said. "We're on to the problem and something is going to have to be done about it."

An attendant may have to be assigned to police the lot, he said.

There is parking for 800 cars in Arlington Park's commuter lot. The station opened in September 1973 and use of the train station quickly increased.

Residents say the improperly parked cars are a nuisance and a hazard during the evening rush hour when many cars are leaving the parking lot and other cars are pulling in to pick up riders.

Former nursing home site

New housing plan weighed

A new development proposal for land on which permission for a nursing home has twice been denied will be presented to a Rolling Meadows City Council committee tonight.

The site covers 3.5 acres on the north side of Kirchoff Road between Winthrop Village and Vermont Street. City Engineer James Muldowney has discussed potential "low intensity" uses of the land with the owner and architects, and said he believes the new plan will be for a condominium community.

The land was formerly owned by Robert Roskamp, who applied twice to the city for zoning for a nursing home. Residents of condominium projects near the site objected and convinced the council to deny the zoning change.

Roskamp sold the land and the new owner moved into an existing house on the site about six weeks ago, said Muldowney. He said he could not recall the purchaser's name, but said the man wishes to retain the wooded setting around the house, while developing the rest of the site for a use compatible with existing building patterns.

THE NEW PROPOSAL probably will be for a residential development similar to Winthrop Village and Plum Grove Village subdivisions, two of the primary opponents of the old nursing home plan, said Muldowney.

Also on the agenda for the meeting at 8 p.m. today is a request for rezoning land on the east side of Hicks Road between Euclid and Kirchoff roads. The petitioners are John McGlaughlin and Thomas Murray, but city officials said they do not know what zoning the two men wish to receive.

The public works, building and zoning committee also is to consider a request for a sign variation, and review a report on an illegal sign in the city.

Mediator hopeful postal strike can be averted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W. J. Usery of the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service early Sunday evening said some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said, "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to

THE BALDWIN ROAD resurfacing between Hicks and Rohlwing roads is 70 per cent done and is expected to be completed today. Robert Miller, Palatine public works director and engineer, said the resurfacing will complete the nearly $280,000 improvement project, except for landscaping which will wait until cooler weather. The improvement project is being done by Franzen-Peters Inc. and has included a new storm sewer, street widening, and curbs and gutters.

Inverness at issue

Library vote meeting topic

The Palatine Library Board will conduct an informational meeting tonight for Palatine and Inverness residents who will vote Sept. 27 to decide if Inverness should be included in the library district.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. at the Inverness Fieldhouse, at the end of Highland Road.

The library board is waiting for final approval from the Circuit Court on the date and polling places for the special election as required under state law governing library districts.

INVERNESS OFFICIALS requested the village be excluded from the library district's June 28 expansion referendum because they wanted a separate vote on the issue.

Officials said that Inverness homes have a higher assessed valuation than other township homes and that Inverness residents would be paying more per family in taxes to the library district. Inverness and other non residents can now pay an annual $30 fee to use the library.

The Village of Inverness could add about $18 assessed valuation and about 2,000 residents to the library district which now has about 23,000 residents.

Library officials say they do not know the assessed valuation of the new township areas, north of Palatine, that have entered the library district.

THE LIBRARY district must conduct the referendum before Sept. 30 when the portion of a $92,000 federal grant that it receives to serve Inverness residents expires. The library district has used the grant during the past year to offer free services to non-residents.

New residents of the library district will continue to receive the free services, which include a bookmobile, as they are financed by the grant for another year. Inverness residents will also continue receiving the services if they enter the district.

It will take a majority vote of library district residents and Inverness residents who go to the polls to add the village to the district.

17,050 ears of corn ready for church festival

Patrons of the Annual Corn Fest to be sponsored Aug. 2 by Men of the Yoke of Community Church of Rolling Meadows could set new benchmarks for the Guinness Book of Records. The men are expecting about 3,500 patrons between 11 a.m. and 7 p.m., to be dining on the church lawn at 2720 Kirchhoff Rd. Tickets will be sold on the grounds at $2 for adults and $1 for children. The prize of the menu is to be 17,050 ears of corn, fresh-picked that morning at a farm in Prairie View.

To round out the meal, the club men will also serve 800 pounds of hamburger on 4,800 buns, 300 pounds of onions, 200 pounds of butter and 175 watermelons. All will be washed down in 90 cases of quart bottles of soft drinks.

The quantities of food have more than doubled since the men held their first corn fest in 1958.

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer.

Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

"SOME MAJOR decisions have to be made, if they can be made," Usery said. "I'm still hopeful."

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

CORNPICKERS and corn eaters will dig in Aug. 2 for the annual Rolling Meadows Corn Fest sponsored by the Men of the Yoke of Community Church. More than 3,500 hungry visitors are expected at the Corn Fest and to greet them will be 17,050 fresh picked ears of corn. Getting ready are Scott and Brent Toman and Rev. William Herman.

MONEY WAS CHEAP Saturday at Palatine National Bank where torn and tattered bills were on sale — at reduced prices. The discount prices on the "old" money was part of the annual sidewalk days celebration.

'Dirty money' is a real bargain!

Bargain hunters of all ages lined up at Palatine National Bank Saturday for a rare opportunity — the chance to buy money at bargain prices.

The bank's "cheap money sale" was part of the Palatine businessmen's sidewalk days.

Residents were given the opportunity to purchase mutilated and dirty $20, $10, $5 and $1 bills at discount prices.

The $20 bills were $18.50, $10 bills, $9.50, $5 bills, $4.50 and $1 bills, 90 cents. Shoppers were allowed to purchase a maximum of two bills.

"IT SEEMS like the best deal around," said Brian Jacobi, 16, of Palatine. "You go to a lot of sales and lose money, but this is one where you can make some."

Frieda Bitter, of Palatine, looked at the sale as a way to make some easy money, adding that she hoped to purchase "two dirty twenties."

It's better than going to the races," she said. "It's a chance to make some money for a change."

Scott Meyer, 15, of Palatine, said he would buy the maximum number of bills allowed, adding that he wished he could purchase more. "I'd like to take all of my money out of the bank and buy the bills with it," he said.

OF THE MONEY he was allowed to purchase, Scott said, "I'm going to bank some of it and keep some of it for spending."

Rita Wright, 13, of Palatine, said she took money out of the bank to purchase the mutilated bills. "I'm going to put back the money I took out of the bank and spend the profit," she said.

Laura Laschlava, 10, of Palatine, and her sister, Niki, 13 and brother, Bill, 15, obtained loans from their mother to purchase bills.

"My mother gave us the money and we're going to get to keep the extra money we make," Laura said.

ONE PALATINE woman, who asked not to be identified, discovered she was short of money while waiting in line and borrowed money from a stranger so she could purchase the bills.

"I'll pay you back from the money I make buying the bills," she told the stranger.

A spokesman for Palatine National Bank said the turnout for the mutilated and dirty bills was good and that the bank expected to sell the $1,500 in bills set aside for the sale.

"The lines have been pretty long," he said. "They're buying it up as fast as we can bring it out."

Plum Grove Hills to be reviewed

Palatine officials tonight will continue their review of the preannexation agreement for the proposed Plum Grove Hills development near Harper College.

D. F. Draper and Associates, developer of the 365 acres, is expected to respond to a suggestion that the commercial development clustered around the intersection of Euclid Avenue and Quentia Road be rearranged. The proposed change would move a proposed shopping center further from the existing Hunting Ridge subdivision.

Commuters losing spots to race track patrons

Commuters who regularly use the Arlington Park train station are running into problems from race track patrons.

Racing fans are parking haphazardly in the commuter lot in order to skirt the $1 race track parking fee and the crowded lots near the grandstand.

In many cases, the race track cars are arriving after the daily 50-cent commuter parking fee has been collected, area residents report, and the track patrons wind up parking for free.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Police Capt. Jack Aldrich says the village has no jurisdiction over parking in the race track's commuter lot and is powerless to ticket or tow improperly parked cars. Police officers have talked to track officials about the problem, he said.

"We have no police authority whatsoever, but I think they're getting tired of listening to us," Aldrich said.

At Arlington Park, a spokesman admitted Friday that a problem does exist.

"I just talked to the police about it today," he said. "We're on to the problem and something is going to have to be done about it."

An attendant may have to be assigned to police the lot, he said.

There is parking for 800 cars in Arlington Park's commuter lot. The station opened in September 1973 and use of the train station quickly increased.

Residents say the improperly parked cars are a nuisance and a hazard during the evening rush hour when many cars are leaving the parking lot and other cars are pulling in to pick up riders.

Bicentennial unit to meet Tuesday

Palatine's Bicentennial committee will meet Tuesday to review plans for the purchase of a 103-year-old house at 224 E. Palatine Rd. for an historical museum.

The committee hopes to establish a fund-raising program to raise money for the initial downpayment on the house, Thomas Ahern, committee chairman, said.

The cost of purchasing and renovating the house has been estimated at $60,000. The committee hopes that the museum can be opened next summer to commemorate the nation's Bicentennial.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Palatine Village Hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

Vandals damage 4 autos with acid

The vehicles were parked outside 950 Countryside. The car owners are Kathy Guenther, Richard Hanschild, Eileen Schwerdtfeger and William Fitch.

Usery said, "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer. Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

"SOME MAJOR decisions have to be made, if they can be made," Usery said. "I'm still hopeful." Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

"We would want to be fair to the public because we would not want to be striking against the public," Rademacher said. He disclosed the union's first wage position called for an increase of about 24 per cent during a two-year period, which he said would mean comparability with the employees of the private United Parcel Service. He said USP workers make $1.36 an hour more than postal worker on the same jobs.

Rademacher indicated the unions had eased these wage demand when he said, "We recognize the pressures. We are willing to make an accommodation."

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

and

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs: Hoffman Estates—1-14 bold—

About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 425 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads—most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents—downtown, the Rand-Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 852 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Signal-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

Crusade of Mercy sets $31,000 goal for 1975

The Mount Prospect Crusade of Mercy is aiming to raise $31,000 in the 1975 campaign.

William Hickey, president of the local Crusade of Mercy, said the goal is the same as last year, but about 9 per cent higher than the money actually raised last year. About $29,000 was raised during the 1974 campaign.

Hickey said he thinks the fund-raising campaign will be more successful this year because of improving economic conditions. "We feel general economic conditions are a little bit improved, and the people in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights are more aware of the money that is being spent in the needy area," he said.

RESIDENTS in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights will be contacted by mail sometime shortly after Oct. 8, the scheduled kick-off date for the 1975 drive. Hickey said prior to the mailings there will be a kick-off golf outing tentatively scheduled for the end of August.

Last year, Crusade of Mercy officials were disappointed in the response from the professional community and from some business sections. Hickey said the campaign will be geared to pick up support in these areas as well as step up the residential campaign, which has been a mainstay of local fund raising.

"We're going to have our normal residential campaign accelerated to get more people in the village participating," Hickey said.

HICKEY SAID that every dollar raised locally will be matched with $2 from the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy. He said this means the $31,000 goal will bring in nearly $100,000 for the 14 local agencies supported by the Crusade.

The local agencies that share the Crusade of Mercy's funds include Camp Fire Girls, Clearbrook Center, Girl Scout Council of Northwest Cook County, North Cook County 4-H Clubs, Northwest Mental Health Assn., Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded, Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts, Northwest Suburban Day Care Center, Northwest Suburban Homemakers Service, Shelter Inc., the YMCA, the Chicago USO and the Salvation Army.

Hickey said the public will be able to follow the progress of the campaign by watching a large thermometer that will be erected this fall by the Mount Prospect train station.

TV, radio stolen from St. Emily's

A television and AM-FM radio valued at $100 were stolen when burglars forced their way into St. Emily's School, 1400 Central Rd., Mount Prospect police said.

Police reports said the burglars opened an unlocked window on the south side of the building and cut through a screen early Sunday. The radio and television were stolen from the school's library.

Police also said burglars entered the apartment of Kevin Downing, 1120 S. Elmhurst Rd., late Friday and stole a stereo receiver and two speakers.

Mediator hopeful postal strike can be averted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W. J. Usery of the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service early Sunday evening said some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said, "I certainly think that

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer.

Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

New school board member to be appointed Thursday

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education is expected to appoint a new board member Thursday night.

Interviews were conducted this week with three persons interested in filling the vacancy created by Edwin Smith's resignation.

James DeNoma, who was defeated in the April election, Linda Margulies and William Engebretson were interviewed by board members.

The board must fill the post by Aug. 1 or hold a special election. The board may not appoint a candidate Thursday if more applications are received by the district and additional interviews needed.

ALAN BLATTNER, who also was defeated in the April election, earlier announced that he would seek the position but had not applied as of Friday.

Smith resigned July 1 after serving on the board for eight years because he is moving out of the district.

There's more to math than just a jumble of numbers.

Students in the summer school program "Math Without Numbers" at Lincoln Junior High School, Mount Prospect, learned to put their mathematical abilities to artistic use in string designs, puzzles, straw polyhedra and cartoon drawings.

All artistic activities are based on mathematical principles, said teacher Ellen Gnoyke. Students used measurement, proportion and geometry and learned to find the focal point of an ellipse while working on their projects.

"They learn a lot of things indirectly," she said. Everything is measured in metric units and "I think if you ask them they would say they much prefer metric," she said.

THE 20 JUNIOR high school students worked on a variety of projects during the five-week course. Students made polyhedra by attaching soda straws with thread to make a three-dimensional geometric figure.

Other students learned to copy cartoons from a newspaper or magazine by making the square containing the cartoon into a grid pattern and then copying each part of the caricature that appeared inside the grid.

Several students chose to make string designs by pounding nails into a board in a geometric pattern and then wrapping different colors of thread around the nails to make a design.

Jill Henking spent about two weeks working on her string design, which consists of four ellipses intersecting in a circle in the middle. After the project was completed, she decided she didn't like the color of the background so she unwound yards of thread and began again.

Village ready to change billing for trash pickups

Mount Prospect officials have begun preparing for an expected change in the garbage-collection-financing system, informally approved by the village board.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the finance department has started to look into the pricing of new bills, adding garbage charges to the water bills. He said the village will also have to develop a new billing list for the New Town area of Mount Prospect, since that section does not use village water.

THE SHIFT in garbage-collection financing is to become effective Aug. 1, with residents picking up $3 of the current $9.92 charge. Bills for the service, however, are not expected to be ready for at least two months, according to the finance department. The garbage fees, like water billing, are expected to be paid quarterly.

The board informally approved the change in an effort to find new revenues to cover $371,000 of recently approved salary increases. Currently the village pays the entire cost of garbage collection from tax money, with the cost for this year estimated at $800,000.

The change in the system is expected to save the village an estimated $408,591 this year, since taxes for this year's garbage collection have already been levied.

Eppley said no action will be taken on the switchover until the change is formally approved at the board meeting Aug. 5. "We're starting, but of course nothing is official until Aug. 5," he said. "We're not ordering a thing on the basis of a committee report. We're investigating and gearing up, but not spending any money."

Village girl's own Odessa file

When Lynn Johansen signed up for the High School Dist. 214 summer trip to Russia she was excited and eager to go — and rightly so. But it turned into more of a trip than she bargained.

Lynn, 16, of 403 N. Maple St., was one of 15 students and five adults who made the excursion under the direction of Prospect High School language teacher Edward Swick. It was a three-week trip — 18 days in the Soviet Union and four in Finland — from June 18 to July 10.

The group went first to Helsinki and then to Leningrad, where Lynn first complained of feeling ill. When the tourists arrived at Odessa, it was obvious that Lynn had a problem and she was taken to a hospital. Upon arrival, it was determined that the girl needed an appendectomy — at once. So, in the middle of the night, the appendix was removed.

The tour group, of course, had to continue on its schedule and Lynn was left at the Odessa University hospital.

SWICK CALLED Lynn's parents, Shirley and Bob Johansen, when the surgery was completed and reported that Lynn was OK but would be kept six to eight days in the hospital. A cablegram would be sent, the teacher reported, telling when Lynn would arrive home. The parents talked to Lynn at that time and through tears, learned all was as well as could be expected.

A few days later, the Johansens tried to call Lynn and received only a series of confusing comments like, "She is not in this hospital," and "There is no Odessa University hospital."

In frustration, Shirley and Bob even tried to reach their daughter through the U.S. State Dept., Consulate Office and Embassy — but still no luck.

Finally, two cablegrams arrived saying that Lynn had been released from the hospital, was on her way to Moscow and would be going home. She arrived at O'Hare airport, Thursday evening.

THE TOUR GROUP had returned home two days earlier and a number of the young people were at the airport to meet Lynn. They carried a banner reading, "You deserve a break today."

Says Lynn of the experience: "The hospital was very old and depressing. And, would you believe, I had to walk to the operating room for surgery."

"The worst part of the experience was not having family and friends around. I had no visitors, no flowers. It sure felt good to get home!"

Said her mom Shirley: "The only good part of the whole thing is that Russia pays for the surgery, hospital, doctor and all."

River Trails Park Board OKs $928,325 budget

The River Trails Park Board has approved a $928,325 budget which anticipates a decrease in tax receipts.

The appropriation ordinance, for fiscal year 1975-76, is $62,302.50 or 5.7 per cent less than last year's. Similarly, projected revenue for the district is $1,042,077, which is a decrease of $20,827 or 1.9 per cent.

Park Director Marvin Weiss said

Ave., Wheeling, is a research technician for Universal Oil Products in Des Plaines. He has worked with the Hawthorne School Parent Teacher Committee and last year served as president of the Hawthorne Parent Advisory Council. He also has been chairman of the science club at the school and worked on the Dist. 21 social studies curriculum committee.

He said he has been thinking about seeking a board position and "this gave me the opportunity to give it a try." Engebreton has lived in the district for two years and has two children at Hawthorne.

DeNOMA, 544 White Pine Rd., Buffalo Grove, is a guidance counselor at Rolling Meadows High School and former teacher at Prospect High School.

DeNoma said he decided to seek the position because he ran for the board in April but was defeated by incumbents Susan Rose and Lillian Still. During the campaign he said he favored bringing elementary teacher pay schedules up to high school standards and talked about hiring more male teachers for the elementary grades. He also wanted to expand special services, such as guidance counseling, in the district.

Mrs. Margulies, 330 Windsor Dr., Buffalo Grove, worked on the Dist. 21 citizens boundary committee last year and is on the citizens committee for health, safety and facilities. She has been a PTA board member at Alcott School for three years and has two children at that school.

part of the revenue loss will be the result of a lowering of the district's total equalized assessed valuation. "We will get about $5,000 less from the real estate taxes," Weiss said.

The equalized assessed valuation has been lowered because, for the second consecutive year, county officials have lowered the multiplier factor used to average assessment levels in counties to the same or equalized percentage of full value.

THE MULTIPLIER was reduced last year from 1.57 to 1.49 and again this year to 1.44, Weiss said.

Last year the Illinois General Assembly passed legislation, however, that guaranteed the park district would receive the same amount of revenue from real estate taxes. This year, such a bill was vetoed by Gov. Daniel Walker.

Weiss estimated this would mean a drop in the district's equalized assessed valuation from $64 million two years ago to $61 million this year. He said revenue for the general fund alone would drop from $64,000 to $61,000 "which will hurt severely."

"We will be forced to raise our fees for some programs," Weiss said. However, Board Pres. Kenneth Rudnick suggested the board might put aside part of the more than $390,000 federal grant received last year as an investment to raise the funds lost through the decrease in tax receipts.

Comr. George R. Meier said it would probably take an investment of $40,000 to $50,000 annually to make up the $3,000.

THE LARGEST decrease in the budget was in the corporate fund which went from $706,475 to $533,750. Weiss said much of this was because federal grant money spent last year is not available to be spent again this year.

The recreation fund was increased slightly, from $187,900 to $196,100 for this year.

Along with the appropriation and budget ordinance, Weiss submitted a tentative budget for the year to the park board. The tentative budget, which was not voted on, totaled $757,650 compared with the $928,325 appropriated.

A Mount Prospect man has been charged with possession of marijuana and resisting arrest after he was taken into custody early Saturday.

Police said James R. Solomon, 18, 1000 Boxwood Dr. was arrested near Euclid Avenue and Burning Bush Lane.

Police said Solomon was driving fast on westbound Euclid when his auto went out of control and swerved across the median into the opposite lanes.

Police, who had been following him, said they noticed open beer in the auto when they announced the arrest, they said. Solomon broke away and took a bottle containing marijuana from his pocket. The bottle dropped and broke, police said.

Solomon also was charged with open liquor in an auto and driving on the wrong side of the road. He was released on $1,000 bond pending an Aug. 27 appearance in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

Suburbs' top spots for 'fender benders'

by STIRLING MORITA and JOHN MAES

Think about it. Of all the bad intersections in the Northwest suburbs, which is the most dangerous? At what crossing will the law of averages be against you and the fender of your car?

A Herald survey of police department statistics in the Northwest suburbs reveals that the worst intersection in the area is at Higgins and Roselle roads in Hoffman Estates where there were 73 accidents in the first five months of the year.

Here are the most hazardous spots in the Northwest Suburbs: Hoffman Estates—1-14 bold—

About 17 per cent (73 accidents) of Hoffman Estates' 426 accidents for the first five months of 1975 occurred at Higgins and Roselle roads—most of them caused by a vehicle making an improper left turn, police said.

"Hopefully, that will change with the construction at the intersection," said Hoffman Estates Sgt. Ronald Sperandio, who said a second left-turn lane and a traffic light for only left-turning west-bound (on Higgins) traffic, should be completed soon.

About 500 feet north of the intersection is another accident-prone area. There have been 13 accidents where the driveways of two shopping plazas meet on Roselle Road. Sperandio said he hoped the mishaps would be cut if right-turn-only signs were erected on the plaza driveways.

He said the most hazardous areas with high rates of injuries are Golf Road west of Barrington Road along with Hassell and Barrington roads. Sperandio said the western stretch of Golf Road is dimly lit and the road is in poor condition. The Hassell-Barrington area draws heavy morning traffic with resident heading for the Barrington Road entrance to the Northwest Tollway.

Hoffman Estates

In Schaumburg for the first five months of 1975, about 4 per cent (45 accidents) of the village's 1,076 accidents occurred at Schaumburg and Roselle roads, and about 3 per cent (36) at Golf and Higgins roads.

Sgt. Dan Coursey said the causes were chiefly engineering problems like speed limits being too high and poor visibility.

Elk Grove Village

Elk Grove Village police said the most hazardous intersection in that community is Higgins and Arlington Heights roads. Police said an accident occurs there almost every week.

Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights authorities pointed to three areas of the village where there are large numbers of accidents—downtown, the Rand-Palatine-Arlington Heights roads triangle and the Algonquin-Golf-Arlington Heights roads triangle.

Capt. Jack Aldrich said a large number of the mishaps occur from "sheer traffic volume. As long as we're going to have a lot of people, we are going to have accidents."

Records through mid-June show: Arlington Heights-Algonquin, 37 accidents (4 per cent of the 852 total accidents); Golf-Algonquin, 21 (2.5 per cent); Golf-Arlington Heights, 26 (3 per cent); Rand-Arlington Heights, 29 (3.4 per cent); Palatine-Arlington Heights, 9 (1 per cent); Sigwalt-Arlington Heights, 11 (1.3 per cent).

Commuters losing spots to bettors

Commuters who regularly use the Arlington Park train station are running into problems from race track patrons.

Racing fans are parking haphazardly in the commuter lot in order to skirt the $1 race track parking fee and the crowded lots near the grandstand.

In many cases, the race track cars are arriving after the daily 50-cent commuter parking fee has been collected, area residents report, and the track patrons wind up parking for free.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Police Capt. Jack Aldrich says the village has no jurisdiction over parking in the race track's commuter lot and is powerless to ticket or tow improperly parked cars. Police officers have talked to track officials about the problem, he said.

"We have no police authority whatsoever, but I think they're getting tired of listening to us," Aldrich said.

At Arlington Park, a spokesman admitted Friday that a problem does exist.

"I just talked to the police about it today," he said. "We're on to the problem and something is going to have to be done about it."

An attendant may have to be assigned to police the lot, he said.

There is parking for 800 cars in Arlington Park's commuter lot. The station opened in September 1973 and use of the train station quickly increased.

Residents say the improperly parked cars are a nuisance and a hazard during the evening rush hour when many cars are leaving the parking lot and other cars are pulling in to pick up riders.

TV coverage of spacemen

Here's the timetable of events today for the Apollo-Soyuz international spaceflight.

8:50 a.m. — Soyuz touchdown near the town of Arkalyk in Siberia, 1,250 miles southeast of Moscow.

8:55 a.m. — Astronauts awakened.

8:59 a.m. — Apollo crew eats breakfast.

8:44 a.m. — Apollo crew conducts x-ray astronomy experiment for 37 minutes. It is the first such experiment period Monday.

1:45 p.m. — Astronauts eat lunch.

2:56 p.m. — Apollo astronauts use a helium detector to study interstellar space.

9:30 p.m. — Apollo crew eats dinner.

EASY DOES IT as another section of sewer piping is laid in place at Windsor Drive and Rand Road. The work will continue on for three months.

Fill-in-the-gap program

Village to review panel's proposals for sidewalks

A first step toward implementation of Arlington Heights' new sidewalk policy will be up for consideration by the village board at its meeting tonight.

Sidewalks on major thoroughfares, as specified in the sidewalk policy, have been proposed by the Board of Local Improvements.

The village board will review the streets where sidewalk gaps exist to determine which sections should be included in an upcoming special-assessment program.

THE POLICY, adopted by the village board in March, states that sidewalks should be installed on both sides of the following streets:

- Arlington Heights Road, Wilke and New Wilke roads, Arthur Street (west side only), Busse Road, Windsor Road (north of Thomas), Buffalo Grove Road, Rand Road, Northwest Highway (north side only), Dundee Road, Palatine Road, Thomas Avenue.

- Oakton Street, Camp McDonald Road, Euclid Avenue, Campbell Street (west of Arlington Heights Road) Kensington Road, Davis Street (Sigwalt to Arthur streets, south side only), Kirchoff Road, Central Road and Golf Road.

BOLI has prepared maps showing all the missing sidewalks on these streets where the property is within the Village of Arlington Heights.

Also on the board's agenda tonight is a recommendation by a majority of a specially-appointed citizens' committee that the village build a $750,000 vehicle maintenance garage at the public works center, 222 N. Ridge.

OTHER MEMBERS of the committee have recommended a less costly garage.

Part of Campbell Street to close

Campbell Street will be partially closed between Ridge and Kaspar avenues Wednesday to Friday while village public works crews make sewer repairs at the intersection of Salem Avenue and Campbell Street.

Traffic will be detoured a block south to Sigwalt Street, except for Campbell Street residents within those two blocks who will have access to their driveways.

The work will be postponed in the event of bad weather Wednesday.

As proposed, the village's utility tax would be used to pay for the new garage which would provide service and repair facilities for village-owned vehicles.

The garage became a political controversy during the last village election campaign with Trustee Dave Griffin, unsuccessful candidate for village president, and some other candidates, contending that a need for the facility had not been thoroughly established.

Tonight's meeting is at 8 at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Postal strike threat dims

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Day-long negotiations Sunday failed to bridge major differences between Postal Service unions and management over pay and work rules but the top U.S. labor mediator remained hopeful of agreement before the unions' contracts expired at midnight.

Director W. J. Usery of the U. S. Conciliation and Mediation Service early Sunday evening said some major decisions remained to be made if a new contract covering about 600,000 postal workers was to be reached by the midnight deadline.

At a dinner break, James H. Rademacher, president of the National Assn. of Letter Carriers, complained "we've heard nothing all day."

"We're insulted by an offer from management, which in my personal opinion, would not exceed 3 per cent," he said, compared with a 24 per cent increase originally demanded by the unions.

Rademacher, however, said that his union was not prepared to strike.

Some local unions had threatened to demonstrate or strike if a new contract was not reached but a nationwide walkout, which is forbidden by federal law, was not anticipated.

Usery said, "I certainly think that postal workers will continue to work. I hope. It would be a violation of the law if they strike."

BERNARD CUSHMAN, chief negotiator for the four postal unions, said "There are rather a substantial number of issues over which there are wide differences."

The major issues remained money and work rules, Cushman said. "I am still attempting and will continue to attempt to reach an agreement."

He added he hoped Postal Service management would make a new offer. Darrell F. Brown, assistant postmaster general and chief negotiator for the Postal Service, said in a cautiously-worded statement, "We continue to remain hopeful that we will have an agreement on all issues before midnight."

Usery, special assistant to President Ford for labor relations, said he was seeking a settlement rather than simply an interim agreement that would keep postal workers on the job while the talks continued.

"SOME MAJOR decisions have to be made, if they can be made," Usery said. "I'm still hopeful."

Usery said the talks were among "the toughest I've been in."

Schools OK $13.75 million '75-'76 budget; up 6.6%

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 school board has approved a tentative $13.75 million budget for 1975-76, a 6.6 per cent increase over last year's budget.

The budget is tentative and changes will be made before it is adopted by the board, said Business Mgr. Dan M. Suffoletto. The budget is now available to the public in the Dist. 25 administration center, 301 W. South St., Arlington Heights.

The budget reflects a 6.2 per cent increase in the education fund and allots a 5.7 per cent increase in teacher salaries from $5.59 million last year to $5.91 million in 1975-76. Suffoletto said the salary increase is a "ballpark" figure at this point as negotiations have not been settled. No new programs are included in the budget and the district expects a slight decrease

Vacancy on school board may be filled Thursday

Three candidates have been interviewed for a post on the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education to fill the vacancy created by Edwin Smith's resignation.

James DeNoma, who was defeated in the April election, Linda Margulies and William Engeltson were interviewed by the board this week. The board will make the appointment at its meeting Thursday.

Allan Blattner, who also was defeated in the April election, earlier announced that he would seek the board position but had not applied prior to the interview deadline.

Smith resigned July 1 after serving on the board for eight years because he is moving out of the district.

ENGELTSON, 124 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, is a research technician for Universal Oil Products in Des Plaines. He has worked with the Hawthorne School Parent Teacher Committee and last year served as president of the Hawthorne Parent Advisory Council. He also has been chairman of the science club at the school and worked on the Dist. 21 social studies curriculum committee.

He said he has been thinking about seeking a board position and "this gave me the opportunity to give it a try." Engeltson has lived in the district for two years and has two children at Hawthorne.

DeNOMA, 544 White Pine Rd., Buffalo Grove, is a guidance counselor at Rolling Meadows High School and former teacher at Prospect High School.

DeNoma said he decided to seek the position because he ran for the board in April but was defeated by incumbents Susan Rose and Lillian Stiller. During the campaign he said he favored bringing elementary teacher pay schedules up to high school standards and talked about hiring more male teachers for the elementary grades. He also wanted to expand special services, such as guidance counselling, in the district.

Mrs. Margulies, 330 Windsor Dr.,
Buffalo Grove, worked on the Dist. 21 citizens boundary committee last year and is on the citizens committee for health, safety and facilities. She has been a PTA board member at Alcott School for three years and has two children at that school.

Tentative schools budget rises 6.6% to $13.75 million

In staff, Suffoletto said.

Also budgeted is a 16 per cent increase in costs of educational supplies from $262,052 last year to $312,921 this year.

REVENUE TO THE education fund is estimated at $10.56 million, an 8 per cent increase over last year's $9.77 million. State aid to the district is expected to increase by 7.2 per cent from $4.8 million to $5.15 million.

The district will borrow 24 per cent more on tax anticipation warrants, according to the budget, or $898,816 this year compared to $724,000 last year. The district borrows money and repays it when tax money comes in.

The building fund shows about a 13 per cent increase with custodial salaries responsible for the majority of the increase. Budgeted into the building fund is $80,000 for the renovation of Dwyer School, 500 S. Dwyer.

Dwyer School was formerly rented by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization for its program for emotionally disturbed children. During 1975-76 the building will be used for the NSSEO bilingual program, necessitating the remodeling.

The transportation fund shows a 29 per cent increase from $283,866 last year to $379,659 this year with increased costs for bus transportation responsible for the jump.

A public hearing will be held on the budget Aug. 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the administration center.

Burglars get $2,000 coin collection

Arlington Heights police are investigating a burglary in which most of a $2,000 coin collection and jewelry were reported stolen Saturday from the Carol Bianchi home, 1202 W.
Crabtree Dr.

The home was ransacked between 7 and 9:15 p.m. Saturday, police said.
Entry was gained by breaking a window in a door.

Deaths elsewhere

Minnie MacGregor, 79, neo Jansen, of Oak Park, formerly of Chicago, died Saturday in West Suburban Hospital, Oak Park. She was born Sept.
22, 1895.

Visitation is today from 5 to 10 p.m. in the Conboy Funeral Home, 6150 W.
North Ave., Chicago, and Tuesday from 2 to 10 p.m.

Funeral service will be at 1 p.m.
Wednesday in the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. G. Erick
Hagg of North Austin Lutheran Church, Chicago. Burial will be in Mount Emblem Cemetery, Elmhurst.

She is survived by a son, George (Elsie) MacGregor of Arlington Heights; two daughters, Mildred
Scherbing of Chicago and Geraldine (Jorge) Cantu of Oak Park; a daughter-in-law, Helen (the late Harold) MacGregor of Woodstock; 10 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren, and two sisters, Annie Hane of Crystal Lake and Gertrude Gustafson of Florida. She was preceded in death by her husband, Guy J.; two sons, Harold and Guy J. MacGregor Jr.; two brothers, Fred and John Jansen, and a sister, Martha Schmehl.
